

'...He Must Rise Again From the Dead'

Veiled Tewkesbury Abbey cross, replica of altar cross at Canterbury Cathedral, is at right as Very Rev. Dean P. R. Beattie stands before Christ Church high altar in its Lenten array. Vestments will be removed after tonight's evening service and restored Sunday, symbolizing resurrection of Christ. Dean Beattie, recently elected Bishop of Kootenay, will be consecrated at Christ Church on May 1.

MANY SERVICES SCHEDULED

Good Friday, anniversary of the crucifixion, will be solemnly marked by most city churches, with the two cathedrals—Christ Church and St. Andrew's Roman Catholic—centres of district devotions.

in Christ Church, including the three-hour devotions conducted by the Rev. W. R. Coleman and culminating in the St. Matthew Passion of Bach, sung by the cathedral choir at the 8 p.m. Evensong.

At St. Andrew's, the mass of the presanctified will begin at 9.30 a.m., and the last seven words will be the subject of sermons during the 12 to 3 p.m. devotions by a Jesuit father from Gonzaga University, Spokane.

Details of services follow:

CROSSWORD ANSWER TO APPEAR SATURDAY

Because there will be no issue of The Times on Good Friday, results of the weekly crossword contest will be announced in Saturday's editions, along with the next puzzle. The new puzzle will be printed in the Saturday, Monday and Tuesday editions, with a 24-hour extension, until Thursday, the deadline for entries.

Easter Holidayayers Face Dull Weather

Lowering clouds usually associated with Good Friday will be present this year, the Victoria weather office predicts.

But after a showery morning, the sun is expected to break through occasionally in the afternoon.

"There are enough weather disturbances on the map to ensure unsettled weather," weatherman Bill Mackie said. "Indications are for clouds today and Friday, with showers, especially tonight and Friday morning."

Temperatures will be cooler, with an expected high Friday of 53, low 42. And more of the same is likely for the balance of the Easter weekend.

TCA BUSY

Trans-Canada Airlines has scheduled seven extra round-trip flights to Vancouver today, two of them to be flown by 48-passenger North Stars. An extra flight to Seattle is also scheduled.

FLOODS IN QUEBEC, PRAIRIES

265 Fear Starvation In Snowbound Village

Road Cut 17 Days By 8-Foot Drifts

(Compiled from CP Dispatches)

MONTREAL—Starvation threatens St. Hilaire de Dorset, farm village 75 miles south of Quebec City, where 265 residents are short of food after being snowbound for 17 days.

Meanwhile, at Chateaugay Basin, 20 miles south of Montreal—less than 175 miles from St. Hilaire—ravaging spring floods raced through the streets today forcing 750 families from their homes.

The food-shortage at St. Hilaire became known early today.

The village priest, Rev. Armand Germain, said in a telephone appeal for help, that 8 foot drifts cut off the village from the nearest railway station, St. Evariste, nine miles north, late in March.

FOOD RUNS OUT

Animals are near starvation and provisions at the parish church which Father Germain has been sharing with villagers are nearly exhausted, the priest said. There is no doctor at St. Hilaire.

Eight men working in a maple sugaring camp near the village have run out of food.

"They asked me for provisions today but I had to turn them down. I had just given food to a 10-year-old boy who hauled a sled two miles from his farm for food."

Three snowstorms, one of them a blinding, two-day blizzard in late March, cut off the village from highway communication with other towns, Father Germain said.

Some villagers travelled on foot through knee-deep snow Sunday to St. Evariste for food. But the going was difficult and the provisions they carried back would not last long.

ICE JAMS RIVER

At Chateaugay Basin, ravaging spring floods raced through the town when the ice-covered Chateaugay River began breaking up shortly after midnight.

Some 750 families had to quit their homes.

Huge ice floes jammed the river's mouth, raising the water level by six feet within hours. The river burst its banks and sent about 2½ feet of water into homes, business establishments and hotels.

Residents, with boats, were busy evacuating the flood victims. No injuries or fatalities were reported.

Ice-Jam Floods Spill Into Prairie Centres

CP and BUP Dispatches

WINNIPEG—Market gardens in the low-lying Brandon flats are being threatened by the rising waters of the Assiniboine River.

George Durnin, city engineer, said Wednesday night that ice on the river was blocking the movement of the spring runoff, in turn causing the high water level.

"Unless the ice moves soon," he said, "we're going to have a flood on our hands."

Water was just one foot from the top of the dikes at their lowest point Wednesday night but speed of the rise had fallen off and crews of workmen, however, continued to bolster and heighten the dikes.

Meanwhile flood headaches began worrying farmers and towns in Saskatchewan, where spring run-offs have sent streams and rivers lapping over their banks in many places.

At Carnduff, the normally quiet Antler Creek has gone on a spring flooding spree for the first time in 20 years. It took one of the municipal bridges with it, besides seriously weakening a concrete span on No. 1 highway bridge.

The Pipestone River began overflowing the spillway of the new Pipestone dam near the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border. Federal irrigation experts estimated it would take two years or more of normal flow to fill the nine-mile-long reservoir behind the earth-filled dam. It took three days.

At Tantallon, 160 miles northeast of Regina, citizens were using boats to negotiate some streets in the village under 2½ feet of water from the Qu'Appelle River.

Macmillan Succeeds Anthony Eden

Named Britain's Foreign Secretary

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden tonight named Harold Macmillan foreign minister in a cabinet reshuffle preliminary to a general election.

Selwyn Lloyd has been moved up to full cabinet rank and will take over the defense post.

The first cabinet session lasted 65 minutes. No announcement was made at its end, and a calm descended on British politics. Parliament adjourned until April 19 for the Easter recess. The Queen went to Windsor. And the Edens remained in their present home. They planned to move into No. 10 Downing Street after Easter Sunday.

Among the last to leave the cabinet session, which official sources said was quiet, were Macmillan and Lloyd.

Lord Woolton, chairman of the Conservative party, was hailed by the crowd with cries of "when's the election?" He nodded knowingly but said nothing.

Eden was vigorous and obviously elated at taking over the government. His first cabinet session started promptly at 3 p.m., just 28 hours after he knelt and kissed Queen Elizabeth's hand in token of accepting office.

GETS LATEST FIGURES

The general election apparently was in the forefront of his thinking, since the Conservative party's central office rushed complete figures to the cabinet room on all the local county council elections held in England and Wales since March 31.

The figures showed the opposition Socialists lost 14.56 per cent of the seats they held. The Socialists lost control of five councils. They also lost a net total of 175 seats.

Political experts pointed out that these figures do not necessarily reflect what might happen in a national election. In the county council balloting, the turnout is small, local issues predominate and the national newspapers have been on strike.

However, the figures furnished fuel to Conservative politicians to urge Eden to stage a general election as soon as possible.

Canterbury Denies Princess, Townsend Planning Marriage

Primate Blames 'Few English Papers' For Starting Rumor of Royal Romance

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury said today "there is no truth whatever in the rumor" that Princess Margaret might marry RAF Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

The archbishop said the rumor is merely a stunt by a few English newspapers "and a most offensive one at that."

"Most British papers had nothing to do with it (the rumor)," the archbishop, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, said.

The primate of the Church of England arrived here on a sea voyage from Britain today and, with his comments to reporters, took what amounts to his first public stand on any aspect of the Margaret-Townsend case.

Previously, he has refrained from any direct comment.

Recently, however, he outlined his views about the remarriage of divorced persons while their former mates are still alive.

This is the situation with Townsend, who divorced his wife several years ago. She is still alive.

The archbishop said that, under Church of England regulations, the remarriage of such a person is impossible. He said the church's rule must be applied, or the church's authority loses meaning.

3 Held at Vancouver In Tax Refund Fraud

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police said today they had made three arrests and laid two charges in connection with a giant income tax fraud scheme revealed here Wednesday.

"However," said detective Alex Stobie, "the story broke at the wrong time. The publicity has hurt the investigation."

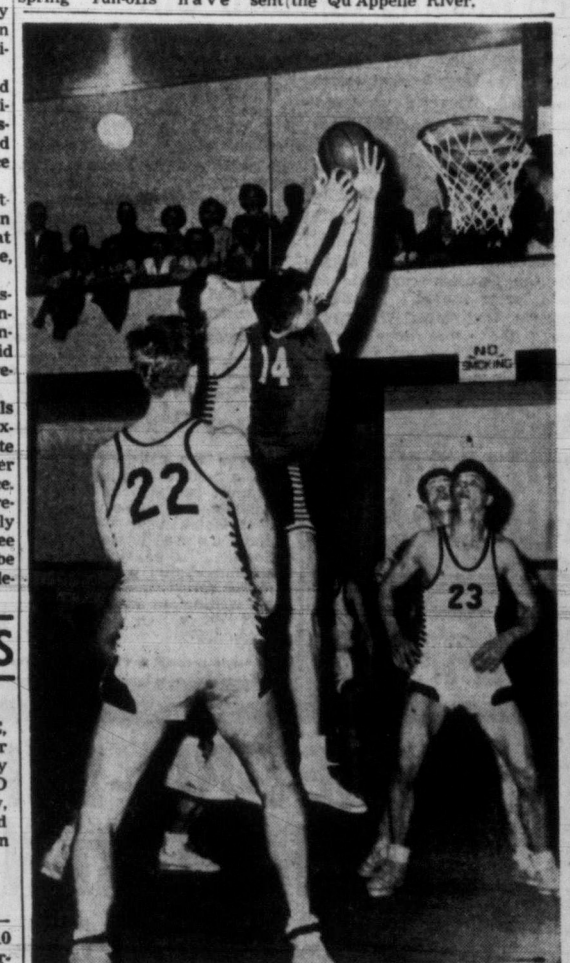

Police had planned about 50 arrests in the cleanup, and said that many of those guilty of fraud probably have left town or gone into hiding as the result of the publicity given the story.

HAVE NO ESTIMATE

Police said forged T4 slips were sold to city tax dealers, but said they had no accurate estimate of the amount of money involved although it might run to "thousands of dollars."

The dealers purchased the slips, all of which showed income tax refunds due to holder, at 30 per cent of the face value of the refund.

Large numbers of persons here, particularly transient loggers, sell their T4 slips in this manner to avoid the usual three or four-month wait involved in regular returns from the revenue department.

Outstanding in Alberni triumph was Joe Samarin (14) fighting for a rebound with an unidentified Edmonton player, while Don McIntosh (22) and Otto Kruger (23) of the Hallers await results. Canadian finals open in Alberni next Wednesday. (Flett Studio)

IN PARLIAMENT

U.S. Foreign Policy Sparks Lively Debate

(From CP and BUP Dispatches)

A CCF member of Parliament says the United States views Canada as a pawn in its military defense line against Russia.

Stanley Knowles, Winnipeg North Centre, said Wednesday that the defense line means more to U.S. State Secretary John Foster Dulles than to the people living along the line.

He urged that Canada talk more plainly in dealing with Mr. Dulles.

George Hees (PC, Toronto Broadview) said it is unfair to imply that Mr. Dulles would sacrifice other countries to protect the U.S. It was Mr. Dulles' serious intent to keep all countries out of war.

The discussion of Mr. Dulles' policies occurred during a resumed foreign affairs debate shortly before the House adjourned for the Easter recess until Monday, April 18—its first holiday since the session began Jan. 6.

Attendance during the half-day sitting was sparse. At one point only 22 of the 265 seats were filled. The quorum—minimum attendance required to transact business—is 20, including the Speaker. Some members, especially from distant constituencies, left for home a few days early.

The Senate also rose Wednesday until Tuesday, May 3. The government leader in the Senate, Solicitor-General Ross Macdonald, said the long recess is because the Commons will be engaged in an extended budget debate when it returns and little legislation will be moved into the Senate for a while.

Mr. Knowles said Mr. Dulles' speeches seem more concerned with military policy than foreign policy. The U.S. diplomat was not interested in the peoples of New Zealand, the Pescadores and northern Canada but rather in their countries as part of a "grandiose Maginot Line."

Countries in the line had become pawns in U.S. military defense strategy.

Terms of Military Strategy

The U.S. was thinking not so much of how to avoid war but more in terms of military strategy as if war were inevitable.

External Affairs Minister Pearson interjected to ask whether Mr. Knowles does not feel that Mr. Dulles' purpose is to avoid war.

The CCF member replied that Mr. Dulles' primary policy is to keep war away from the U.S. The U.S. leader was not so concerned as Mr. Pearson in avoiding war altogether.

Mr. Hees defended Mr. Dulles' intentions but criticized the U.S. state department for making public the Yalta papers on the wartime meeting of President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

He said the revelation of what originally were considered secret talks had made future high-level secret diplomacy almost impossible. Effective diplomacy could be carried on only in private and the release of the Yalta papers had decreased the chances of avoiding war.

Immigration Minister Pickersgill described a charge by a Montreal Progressive Conservative, that the immigration department has permitted United States gamblers to set up operations in Canada as an "anthology of hearsay."

William Hamilton (PC, Notre-Dame-de-Grace) said that newspaper stories published in Montreal indicate that U.S. gamblers are operating on a large scale in the Montreal area.

The immigration department had done nothing to stop them from entering Canada.

Mr. Pickersgill said all that

Mr. Hamilton has done is to "read to us bits and pieces from various articles in various newspapers and talk about the activities of gamblers being common knowledge."

(In Montreal, an RCMP spokesman said the investigation of a group of "undesirables" here has been a top priority job for the last eight months.)

(He said the case is being tackled from the immigration angle on orders from headquarters in Ottawa. Montreal police said their investigation is completed and the city proper is "cleaned of these hoodlums.")

Film Board spent $3,430 shooting sequences of a film showing Parliament at work before it was shelved as unsuitable.

A return tabled Wednesday for John Diefenbaker (PC, Prince Albert) said, however, that the film will be saved in case it is decided in the future to go ahead with the documentary. The return said that work started Feb. 15 and stopped March 14 after 479 hours were spent on it.

Twelve privately owned Canadian power companies have offered to participate with Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. in development of atomic energy for industrial power.

A return tabled Wednesday for Thomas Bell (PC, St. John Albert) also said that six provincial power commissions have made representations to the government in connection with the current program to build an experimental atomic power plant to produce electricity. The private companies which offered to participate included the British Columbia Electric Co. Ltd.

Laborer Claims He Talked To Missing Swedish Girl

VANCOUVER (CP)—Another clue came to light here Wednesday in the international search for Viola Widegren who vanished from her Swedish home in 1948.

A 57-year-old laborer told Vancouver police he talked to Miss Widegren in a city cafe two years ago.

Police here have been asked by the Swedish consulate to help locate the girl following reports that Miss Widegren, using the name Rose Marie

Johnson, had dated a Swedish sailor here in August, 1953.

The laborer, who wished to remain anonymous, told police he and a companion were in a cafe talking in their native Swedish tongue when a girl who said she was Viola Widegren walked over to their table.

Miss Widegren walked out of her home in the Swedish village of Vaester Braenna Dec. 25, 1948, after a quarrel with her father and vanished. Her father had been suspected of her murder.

Towers May Head Probe Of Economy

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Correspondent

Appointment of the Royal Commission to report on Canada's economic prospects is expected to be announced in the Commons shortly after April 18 when the members of parliament have returned from their 12-day Easter recess.

Two prominent Canadians are being mentioned as likely candidates for the post of chairman of the important new commission. They are:

Graham F. Towers, former Governor of the Bank of Canada who retired from that office last November after guiding the central bank's operations through the first 20 years of its existence.

OTHER MEMBERS

Dr. W. A. Macintosh, vice-chancellor and principal of Queen's University, Kingston. He has served in several posts as a leading economic advisor to the Canadian Government.

The commission is expected to have five members.

Decision of the government to set up the commission was made known in his budget speech Tuesday by Hon. Walter Harris, minister of finance.

The provinces, too, have been doing considerable work along those lines. Several of them have research councils and industrial development councils. These efforts were paying dividends, Mr. Harris said.

The federal government accordingly had decided to set up a Royal Commission with instructions to look ahead and examine carefully Canada's future economic prospects.

Maundy Rites Recall Christ's Abnegation

(Reuters News Agency)

Bishops and abbots washed the feet of beggars in Rome today—Maundy Thursday—in commemoration of Christ's washing the feet of his Apostles. Thousands of Easter pilgrims flocked to St. Peter's to see Cardinal Federico Tedeschini, 81-year-old arch-priest of the basilica, wash the giant papal high altar with wine and sweet-smelling balsam in an act of purification.

In Jerusalem, Roman Catholics and Protestants trekked to the garden of Gethsemane, just outside the city wall, to commemorate Christ's agony there before his betrayal by Judas Iscariot.

Thousands of Easter pilgrims, including members of the Orthodox, Coptic, Armenian, Abyssinian and Syrian churches, have come to the city for Easter. The local countryside is ablaze with flowers, and the weather is mild and sunny.

In London, Queen Elizabeth, following a 500-year-old Easter tradition, today distributed the Royal Maundy—silver coins formerly given to the poor—in Southwark Cathedral.

The Maundy services dates from early centuries as an occasion for acts of humility in memory of Christ's washing the feet of his disciples.

Dingo-Dogged

Queensland

Fences Self In

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—

The dingo-plagued state of Queensland has started to build the world's greatest wire-mesh fence this side of the Iron Curtain.

It will be a 3,500-mile-long barrier against the howling, hungry wild dog which costs the state several million pounds a year in dead sheep and cattle.

Both New South Wales and South Australia have vast dingo barriers, but neither is anything near the size of this Queensland project.

The new fence will join the South Australian fence and when it is completed in three years' time there will be a dingo-proof fence extending about 5,500 miles across the continent from the great Australian bight on the south northwards to the gulf of Carpentaria.

QUINT MILLION NOW OFFICIAL

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—

When the four surviving Dionne quintuplets reach the age of 21 May 28, each will receive about $200,000.

In an exclusive interview today with the North Bay Nugget, Oliva Dionne, the quint's father, and Richard F. Donnelly of North Bay, their solicitor, said the girls have a fortune of "very close to $1,000,000."

It was the first time the amount was officially disclosed.

CHURCHILL BOWS OUT—British Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill bows low as he welcomes Queen Elizabeth to 10 Downing Street, London, for dinner. Lady Churchill is at left.

Prince Philip was also at the dinner, which was Sir Winston's "farewell salute" to the monarchy he has served since Queen Victoria. (NEA Telephoto.)

HE'S RETIRED—BUT NOT SLEEPING

Churchill Bubbles With Plans For Remodelling Country Home

WESTERHAM, Eng. (UP)—Sir Winston Churchill today kept a long-promised date with the builders who will remodel his country house while he vacations in Sicily.

The newly-retired prime minister is full of plans and projects, despite his 80 years. The first is to convert Chartwell, the red-brick Georgian house he bought in 1922, from a weekend retreat to a full-time residence.

Later Chartwell will be altered into the "Churchill museum" that Churchill will leave to posterity, much as the late President Roosevelt left his Hyde Park estate.

The museum will be financed from Churchill's 80th birthday fund. Donations are still coming in from all over the world, adding to the $280,000 "first instalment" presented Churchill on his 80th birthday last Nov. 30.

Churchill's first act on arriving Wednesday at Chartwell, after moving out of 10 Downing Street, was to boom at a dozen persons gathered at the gate for his homecoming: "It's so nice of you to come. Thank you so much. Do have a look at the fish."

SIREN SUIT

Then he changed into his favorite country garb, the "siren suit" coversalls he often wore during Second World War.

With him at Chartwell were his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Soames. Lady Churchill stayed behind to oversee the packing.

After dinner, Churchill and his guests viewed a private showing of the American musical film "Carmen Jones."

The Churchills will spend Easter week-end here, then fly to Sicily for a season in the sun.

STILL DOMINANT

His announced intention is to remain in the House of Commons as a "backbench" member of Parliament. But, as his successor, Sir Anthony Eden, said yesterday still "the dominant figure amongst us."

And there is still the monumental historical survey of the English-speaking world which Churchill started writing in the 1930's. It was interrupted by the war, Churchill's war memoirs, and his postwar service as prime minister.

Now he can turn back to it. El Salvador is the smallest and most densely populated of the Central American republics.

700,000 MOVE SOUTH

Lett Reports On Saigon Truce Job

OTTAWA (CP)—Sherwood Lett, head of the Canadian section of the Viet Nam truce supervisory commission, said today some 700,000 persons have quit Communist North Viet Nam to live in non-Communist South Viet Nam. Nearly all are Roman Catholics and Buddhists. In contrast, he said, only some hundreds have moved from South to North Viet Nam. The country was divided by the July, 1954, Geneva armistice into Communist and non-Communist states until an election for the combined states is held in July, 1956.

PROGRESS REPORT

Mr. Lett, in Ottawa to make a progress report to government officials, told a press conference the commission hopes to evacuate as many persons as possible who want to leave North Viet Nam before May 15. Under the armistice terms, that is the cut-off date for movement of refugees from one state to the other.

Until the three-nation commission—the other members are India and Poland—received the final reports of the inspection teams, there was no way of measuring the dimensions of the problem.

Propaganda was being waged by both sides to persuade the would-be evacuees to go or stay. It is a "difficult question" to say whether the Communists are "playing the game," Mr. Lett said. There was no instance where co-operation had been refused the commission. There were cases, and this applied to both sides, where the commission would have liked to see more prompt action on its recommendations.

Manitoba Farmers Fear Land Grab By Hutterites
PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP)—About 200 farmers from Portage and Carleton Place municipalities voted overwhelmingly Wednesday night to seek legislation preventing Hutterite colonies from acquiring any more land in Manitoba except with government approval.

Fearing what was termed "the quiet, creeping occupation of our land by the Hutterite machine," the farmers served notice on the Hutterites they would no longer tolerate the "enveloping movement" of the religious sect that allegedly crippled community activity.

Timber and Politics

WHEN CHIEF JUSTICE SLOAN devised a new timber policy for British Columbia some ten years ago he saw clearly that it would revolutionize our major industry and indirectly affect everyone in the province. He therefore proposed that his system of forest management licenses should be lifted completely out of party politics and administered by an expert, non-partisan commission.

After ten years the Chief Justice resumes his inquiry to find that this basic recommendation of his first report has not been implemented. A government necessarily partisan—like any government—alone decides who shall use our timber wealth and under what conditions. That was the policy of the former coalition and Liberal Governments. They, too, were unwilling to relax their direct control on the forests.

But since the forest management system went into effect many things have happened and many useful lessons have been learned.

Whether the present Government is managing the system wisely and fairly, it is impossible for any layman to judge, until Mr. Sloan completes his study and makes a new report.

It is clear, however, that a large part of the timber industry, and not just a few small loggers, are thoroughly dissatisfied. The timbermen see the whole vast forest of British Columbia being parceled out at a much more rapid rate than the first Sloan report seemed to anticipate, and they find that every decision, affecting millions of dollars, millions of acres and many working people, is made directly by the Cabinet.

Whether men like Mr. Gibson are right or wrong in charging that favoritism is shown by the Cabinet, the fact remains that it alone decides everything. And like all Cabinets, it is constantly subject to political or other pressures.

In technical matters of equal complexity—electrical power and transportation rates, for example—technical decisions have been removed from politics and placed under independent commissions. Chief Justice Sloan, we believe, was right in urging that the same method should be followed with timber, once the state undertook to decide its ownership and use.

It is difficult to understand, indeed, why any government, busy with other things and certain to be criticized for its timber decisions, should wish to involve itself in matters which only experts are equipped to decide.

Assuredly the Government, with the support of the Legislature, must lay down policy and make the primary decision to place our timber under management licenses. Once that broad decision is made, however, it should be carried out in detail, as the Sloan report proposed, by non-partisan technicians who have no favor to curry and no votes to make.

It may be possible for some government of more than ordinary virtue to decide all these things justly, regardless of political pressure, but we doubt that the public will ever believe it. Certainly much of the timber industry does not believe it now, as recent representations to the Chief Justice and debates in the Legislature have shown.

No one can properly anticipate the second Sloan report—but it will be surprising indeed if the Chief Justice does not reiterate his original premise—that a timber system already complex and growing more complex and larger every day should be placed for administrative purposes under men who are interested not in politics but solely in sound forest economics.

If that is still the view of the Chief Justice, as no doubt it is, the Bennett Government would be wise to act on it without delay. The Government should not wait until most or all of the timber has been distributed to private interests now eagerly seeking licenses all over the province. For this system does not create confidence in the new policy or in the Government.

Opposition Ad Absurdum

SENATOR RICHARD L. NEUBERGER, Oregon's junior representative in the upper U.S. chamber, has called for a little straight thinking.

An article by him in a liberal American publication draws attention to a statement by Senator Karl E. Mundt quoted in the Washington Evening Star. Senator Mundt, according to the quotation, discussed varying attitudes to public issues, saying it would be a good idea to find out what position the communists took on them. To that he added: "If they take a unanimous stand for anything, it would be a pretty good rule to be against it—even if it does have some good features."

While Senator Neuberger is as opposed to communism as anyone, he asks if the communists are for peace, shall the West be against it? If they are for public power—and Senator Neuberger has been a strong champion in that field for years—must its democratic proponents immediately reverse themselves? If communists attack bigotry and racial bias, shall opponents of communism automatically defend such prejudices?

The Oregon writer and political figure reduces the Mundt thesis to an absurdity. Yet in modified form the Mundt idea seems to have spread its influence among adults who should know a great deal better.

Sensor Neuberger was writing specifically for the United States public. The point he makes, however, could apply outside U.S. boundaries. And it is a point to which some Canadians might give serious attention.

Waiting for a Fatality?

LATE LAST YEAR A SCHOOL child was struck by a car while she was using a Douglas Street crosswalk near Topaz Avenue on her way from S. J. Willis Junior High.

At the time attention was drawn to the dangerous traffic situation in that locality and in other parts of the city where children going to or coming from classes have inadequate protection.

It is a matter of some satisfaction to note that Saanich acted promptly to provide a sidewalk on Lansdowne Road leading to the new Lansdowne Junior High School.

No similar sidewalk has been provided by the city for the Topaz Avenue approach to S. J. Willis.

Recently more cars have been parked on Topaz, making the situation there more hazardous. Because of the parked cars, children are virtually forced out into the street. They have no other even footing on which to walk.

The danger is obvious. Will it continue until some serious accident, perhaps fatal, occurs before proper steps are taken to reduce the risk? Have the mayor and aldermen stopped to consider the position in which they would be placed if a child were killed there because a sidewalk was lacking?

Victoria's Breath of Spring

VICTORIA'S "BREATH OF spring" is being airlifted over the Rockies this week as daffodil growers of this region make their annual shipments to the prairies and eastern Canadian markets.

The importance of the event commercially is widely appreciated in this locality. Floral gold is being exchanged for currency that will go into early circulation here.

Omelet for an Egg-Head

NEW MEXICO'S SENATOR Clinton P. Anderson has released information on an atomic experiment which should have stayed classified. The housewives of North America should protest.

The senator described the means by which a manufacturer traced hardened egg yolk on a dinner plate placed in his washing machine. He suggests husbands might follow the same technique to check their wives' efficiency at the sink.

All the husband needs is a little radioactive phosphorus 32, a laying hen and a Geiger counter. That's what the dishwasher firm used. The hen eats the radioactive phosphorus 32, transmits it to the egg, the egg is cooked and broken on a dinner plate, allowed to harden, and then passed into the machine. A tester stands by with a Geiger counter which keeps registering the radioactive yolk until it disappears. Transfer the experiment to the kitchen. There you have the feminine dishwasher, the dinner plate with its radioactive egg yolk, and the husband with the Geiger counter. But who counts the husband out when the exasperated feminine dishwasher has applied the plate with its reluctant egg yolk to his head?

They're going too far with this nuclear testing.

LOOSE ENDS

The Stubborn Printed Word

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

WITH the London press suspended by a printers' strike, crowds have been lining up in many British cities to buy the few available newspapers. The public, it turns out, is almost as interested in news as in food. For some reason it is not satisfied with news on the radio and television. It wants the printed word. When radio was invented, and then television, many people supposed that the newspaper, like the horse and buggy, was doomed. After all, it was said, people can get their information painlessly, without straining their eyes on type, so why should they read?

Hutchison

Projecting this race of progress a little way ahead, some authorities predicted that we were entering a new age of illiteracy in which our children would absorb all their knowledge through sounds in the air or pictures on a screen.

IT HASN'T worked out that way. The newspaper press has continued to expand even when television is invading almost every home. And when newspapers suddenly disappear from the streets of London the public feels robbed of an essential item of diet.

To be sure, no reader is ever entirely satisfied with his paper. If the publishers were to satisfy every reader they would have to print a different paper for every home.

Some people no doubt would prefer a solid mass of type and what newspapersmen call "hard" news like The London Times or an elegant pot-pourri of comment and interpretation like The Manchester Guardian. Others would welcome a screaming tabloid full of sensation and sex like the mass-circulation sheets of London.

IN A HUGE metropolis, like London or New York, it is possible to cater to all tastes with many different papers; but in smaller communities, where only one or two papers can exist, it is necessary to contrive some compromise and that compromise is the kind of paper we read in Canada.

More accurately than any other index, I suppose, the daily newspaper of the average town reflects the average mentality of its community. You can step off the train into any North American city and, by reading its daily paper, instantly guess what kind of a community it is. By a queer osmotic process the newspaper takes on the communal coloring. The newspaper seldom rises above its source, the public, or falls below it either.

But whether the press is adequate or not, the mysterious power of the written word remains and cannot be destroyed by any other medium. When old Caxton started his crude printing press he had introduced into human life a permanent force, apparently dependent on the eye, which could read type, but actually dependent on something much deeper and almost inexplicable.

FOR some curious reason a person who once learns to read must regularly or suffer from an inner malnutrition. No television picture, no words on the radio can replace the solid diet of print. The picture may be more exciting for the moment, the radio commentator may be more brilliant than the writer, as he often is, but something is always missing.

The fact seems to be that the printed word is quite different in nature from the spoken word or the visual image. The printed word can be spoken aloud and it is also an image in black and white, but it has another subtle dimension that its competitors lack. It is as different, as an item of diet, as chalk is from cheese. It has a validity and a life of its own.

The newspaper will last only 24 hours at most and end in the fire, but the words printed in it live on inside someone's head, much longer than the spoken word of the radio or the picture on the television screen. I fancy, however, that the printed word has another unique quality—it can be made a personal possession which is not true of the spoken word or the picture. And that, no doubt, is why the people of London missed it so keenly when it disappeared from circulation.

A man listening to the radio or watching television must take in everything instantaneously. The procession is outside his control entirely and he is lucky if he can snatch a blurred glimpse or two as it goes by. The printed word, on the other hand, is in his possession. He can ponder it as long as he pleases. He can read it several times and, disagreeing with it, can argue its meaning with himself or his wife. He may even clip it out sometimes and put it in his pocket and carry it around for years, as many men do, to remind himself of some old memory and to bore his friends.

ANYWAY, it is his, as the communication of radio and television is not. He may not like it. He may not even believe it. He may think it should never have been printed at all; but once he has learned to live on this fare he cannot do without it. It becomes a fixed habit, almost like a drug, a habit-forming but healthful, drug until, as Somerset Maugham once wrote, he would read the labels on tin cans or a mail order catalogue if he couldn't get anything better.

Now, I am not praising the printed word because I think the press of this or any country is perfect in any respect. No one, in fact, is so critical of newspapers as newspapermen who make them. No one understands their weaknesses as well as the publishers. No one is so anxious to improve them as the editors.

BUT since they must live within the context, climate and mind of the average reader, they are never likely to satisfy either producer or consumer. They will grow better or worse as the public taste improves or deteriorates, like a reflection in a mirror. The basic fact, demonstrated by the London black-out, remains—the printed word, however well or badly it is used, will live on, in one form or another, so long as children are taught to read. Once they have grasped it, the printed word becomes part of them, a necessity hardly less compelling than food, and remembered long after spoken words and pictures have been forgotten.

As Our Readers See It

WHY SKINFINT LABEL?

Why should the mayor and city council be made to feel like skinfint because they will not hand over city tax money to the Arts Centre and Symphony Orchestra?

It would be splendid to have a top-notch Arts Centre, orchestra and auditorium but only cold cash will pay for these things. In this respect the city taxpayer is doing more than his share now as the arena and welfare costs show.

These charming people who live in the low tax areas of Elk Lake, Oak Bay and Ten Mile Point pour tea at the Arts Centre and dance at the Symphony Ball, but why don't they harass their own councils as they do the city council? Let us play fair!

INTERESTED.

THE YALTA CONFERENCE

Diplomats have a definite duty to promote peace among all nations. And, as we all know, peace is possible only when the rights of all nations are respected. Representatives of large nations have a special duty to protect the rights of smaller nations.

The diplomats at Yalta surely failed miserably in their efforts to procure for the world a lasting peace.

The first reason for their failure was their lack of a sense of justice. The word was used in the conferences, but it apparently wasn't taken seriously. As each problem was discussed a convenient solution, rather than a just solution, was always reached.

The second reason for the failure at Yalta was the apparent ignorance of the aims of Communism on the part of the American and British delegates. The objectives of Communism had been stated and restated dozens of times. If diplomats were ignorant of the aims of Communism, their ignorance was surely culpable.

It is about time that diplomats realized that they are representatives of the people, and, as such, have a responsibility to be well informed and to seek justice in all their endeavors. They should realize that they will be judged by God, as well as man.

If diplomats everywhere now have a greater realization of their serious responsibilities, the release of the Yalta papers will have served a useful purpose.

Only the guilty have reason to fear the publication of the Yalta story.

FISHERS OF DUES

I see the Victoria press reports that the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (UFAWU) is asking for compulsory dues check off and that all fishing industry workers pay union dues whether or not they are UFAWU members.

What gall! Fancy a communist led and dominated Union insisting that the loyal Canadian fishermen be made to join a recognized communist union.

It's about time the UFAWU got wise to itself and put in leaders not tainted with Russian communism. TLC would then consider their affiliation.

WESTERN DEFENCE DESIGNERS

The Root and the Rootless

By JOSEPH ALSOP, from Saigon, Indo-China

THE WEAKNESS of Coueism as an instrument of foreign policy is currently being proven here in Indo-China. Everything has not "got better and better" just because the American policy makers kept saying it was getting better and better. It has instead got worse. The proof is the crisis of the sects, which have now erupted into armed rebellion. Even before open fighting broke out, and despite his strong American backing, President Diem proved virtually impotent in the face of determined pressure from the local political-religious warlords who are the leaders of the southern Indo-Chinese sects.

It is still barely possible that some sort of compromise settlement might be patched up. If so, the life of the Diem government may be prolonged. But meanwhile a government which has lost a good deal of the authority it possesses. President Diem, who has never yet been able to govern in the true sense of the word, will be still less able to govern in the future.

In these unhappy circumstances, curiously enough, it is hard not to feel a sneaking sympathy for these sect leaders who are substantially increasing the already considerable probability of an eventual Viet Minh victory here in Southern Indo-China.

What they are doing, in an absolute sense, is of course unpardonable folly. Equally of course, their primary motives are the very opposite of disinterested. President Diem's program has threatened their feudal domains and interests. The pay for their private armies, formerly provided by the French, has just been cut off. After years of fighting against themselves, they have therefore united to save their money and their skins.

RARE VIRTUES Yet consider the difference between these men and President Diem. Diem has one important negative virtue. He is conspicuously not a French puppet (although he is now dangerously close to being regarded as an American puppet). He also has two positive virtues rare in Vietnamese public life. He is wholly honest and an undoubted patriot.

On the other hand, this descendant of a great Mandarin family is narrow, obstinate and petty. He is so unwilling to delegate authority that in Indo-China's death agony he deals personally with the issuance of passport visas. Above all he is completely out of contact with the broad mass of his people and the political realities of his country.

The positive virtues of Diem may be lacking in such sect leaders as Gen. Bai Vien of the Binh Xuyen gang that controls Saigon; the "Pope" and generals of the Cao Dai sect; and old Tran Van Soal and war-drunk Ba Cut of the Hoa Hao. But in their different ways, these are all exceedingly able, tough and astute men.

Less of a Threat

Ottawa Journal

IN this country television still is something of a novelty, has something of the interest of a precocious infant, but already in the United States the novelty is worn thin and TV is relatively an old story; its place as a medium of entertainment pretty well fixed, its value for advertising no longer judged on the excited interest in a new toy but on hard and practical surveys.

The Chicago Tribune has just completed what the periodical Editor and Publisher (New York) calls "the most devastating study of television ever made" as it offers this detail:

"Broadcasters have successfully promoted the canard about television's powerful sales impact. This study takes the air out of the balloon.

"The Tribune reports on the success of 10 large TV users who, in spite of top-rated shows with big-name stars, were unable to expand or even to hold their share of the Chicago sales market when they relied on this magic new medium exclusively. Their only forward sales progress was noted when they used also a large amount of newspaper space."

The Chicago Tribune (whatever one who have risen out of the peasant mass by their own efforts.

Brother keeper and gambling racketeer though he may be, Bai Vien is probably the most capable single politician in Southern Indo-China.

The roots of Diem, moreover, are in the dead-and-gone court of Hue. In modern Indo-China, except for his connection with the small Catholic minority, Diem is effectively rootless.

The sect leaders, on the other hand, are strongly rooted in their native earth. For good or ill—and alas mostly for ill—they are able to do what Diem has so far sadly failed to do. They are able to compete with the Viet Minh in controlling the peasants of the villages.

Hence the sect leaders feel themselves far stronger than Diem. There is not a one of them who is not bewildered by the American view that the way to fight communism is to back Diem rather than to back the sects. They say, and with some justice, that they have already proven in their own domains that they can take on and defeat the Viet Minh, whereas the Diem government has shown no sign of doing so.

FEUDAL ANSWER

For the same reason that they are strong, because they are still in a sense Asian primitives, the sect leaders do not see their own folly. They do not understand the larger, non-local issues which make their feudal answer to the Viet Minh ultimately hopeless. But just because the sect leaders do not have this kind of understanding, the American policy makers are not excused from the effort of trying to understand the sect leaders.

In this respect, there has been a lamentable failure. Think for example, of the shouts of joy in Saigon, the pointing with pride in the State Department, when the Cao Dai general, Trinh Minh The "rallied" to the Diem government—at a reported price of around twenty million piastres.

The price was paid. But Gen. Trinh Minh The is now a conspicuous figure in the anti-Diem "Presidium" of the sects. And the best excuse he has been able to offer American officials is that he wished to exercise "a moderating influence," which has not been visible to date.

There are other things about the sect leaders that want understanding too. For example, the Cao Dai "Pope," Pham Cong Tac, has already made public gestures of conciliation towards the Viet Minh in the North. When the heat is on, it is only too probable that some or many of these Indo-Chinese warlords will make the same kind of compact with the Communists that many Chinese warlords hastened to make. To encourage this useful practice, the warlords who made compacts are still being conspicuously cherished in Peiping.

It is a melancholy business, of course, facing unpleasant facts such as those set forth in this report. But the lesson of the sect crisis in Saigon still remains. In the long run advertising slogans and Coueism are a poor substitute for fact facing.

may think of its political views) is one of the wealthiest and most successful newspapers in North America. Its survey and study of television as an advertising medium has far more than local significance.

Some alarmists used to say when radio was new that radio broadcasting would be the ruin of the newspapers. Later they have been saying the same sort of thing about television. It seems there is no more truth in the second statement than there was in the first.

Domestic Revolt

SOAK those breakfast dishes. Flop the beds together. Forget the fluff gathering in the corners. Don't dust down the stairs. I'm through. I'm finished. I'm in a state of fine revolt.

All the best years of my life in the kitchen sink? Not I!

Today I'll be a lily of the field. I'll cook not. Neither will I iron. I'm going for the Walk Without a Name. Anybody care to come along?

I'm sorry about this bit along the road where the cars go whizzing by.

But here's the turning. Now, down the hill and past the wild rose bushes where crimson hips still cling from last year's flowers.

Remember how we used to make necklaces of them as children? Rose hip tea? Oh, for Heaven's sake, keep your mind off cooking.

Yes, isn't it lovely? Just a drainage ditch. But I always hang over the weathered grey railing and look at the ribbon weeds streaming and rippling in the water.

No, I haven't the faintest idea of their name. And I don't give a darn. They're beautiful, though. Like something in a picture. They remind me vaguely of Ophelia. Wasn't she a sap? Fancy drowning yourself for any man. She lacked backbone, that's what. No stiff upper lip.

I love this field. The earth's so black and shiny when it's ploughed. And often there's a kildeer. There he is. See his head bobbing and hear the funny little plaintive cry.

Ruth

Let's take the meadow path up the slope. Look at the daisies. Yes, but if you pick them, they'll close up in the house. Make daisy chains? My dear, we're over 40. It would be like second childhood. But if we had a little girl along, we could do it. Set a daisy wreath in her head and tuck a couple in the bobby pin that holds back her jet black hair.

It's an Easter lily. How beautiful all by itself against the green. Don't you love their spotted leaves? And Shooting Stars and wild Camas? And the glorious brightness of Spring Gold and the slender spikes of Satin Flowers?

Come on, let's rustle our feet in the dry oak leaves. There's no one here to see us and write us off as mad Victorians! You know, in these psychiatric days, I sometimes wonder if scuffling in the leaves means there's something wrong with us. Our mothers rejected us as children, maybe? Or do I have an Oedipus Complex?

Yes, I know it's nonsense. But if you can't talk nonsense in springtime, when can you talk it?

There's too much serious talk these days. That's what's wrong with the world. It's all Chou-en-lai and Chiang-Kai-shek and Yalta and GATT and the Communist Menace and the Word of God.

I guess we need them all. But we also need I think, the little walk in the country, the time to watch what springtime sunshine does to the earth, and the humility and wisdom to understand that this natural miracle has been happening for hundreds and hundreds of years. It will continue to happen long after all of us have turned to dust and ashes.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE C. REYBURN

Allergic to Daffodils

LONDON—Short takes... QUOTE from Rex North's gossip column in the Sunday Pictorial: "Back to Normal Dept.—It was 1.30 on a cold and frosty morning. The door of the Milroy night club opened—and Princess Margaret was bowed in to her usual table. West Indian calypsos were not requested."

BERNIE BRADEN well established as one of the top-flight comedy stars of British radio, has yet to repeat such success in his excursions into TV. But a sketch he did with his radio gang on television recently clicked with the public and the BBC planners. He and his radio team have been given a TV series, starting in a couple of weeks' time.

AUDREY HEPBURN is a bit out of the picture these days. Reason is that she's supposed to be making a film for British studios but a suitable script can't be found. Her employers in this country have unearthed no fewer than 30, any of which they feel would be a good vehicle for her. But to each one she has shaken her head. "I want to make 'Ondine,'" she keeps saying.

The British film-makers can't see it as spelling movie box-office. Why is she holding out for "Ondine"? It was while acting in that play on Broadway that she met hubby Mel Ferrer. At this writing, the problem of sentiment versus box-office hadn't yet been solved.

I DIDN'T KNOW there was such a thing as allergy to daffodils. But Kathleen Marsh, down in Pulborough, Sussex, does. After being in the daffodil-growing business for 20 years she developed an allergy to them that causes her to come out in a rash. Last year her fields of daffodils put her in such bad shape that she went almost blind for two months. So this year, now that her host of golden daffodils is in full bloom, she has packed her bags and headed away from them, leaving a sign: "DAFFODILS—Pick them and put a shilling a dozen in the letter box." Doctors say that daffodil allergy is fairly common. But even worse—primulas.

MAX BAER, heavyweight world champ in prewar days, is on his way to England from San Francisco. It's not the smell of the Marcano-Cockell bout in that town which has driven him away. Baer is now, of all things, a travel guide. He's bringing over tourist parties for a California travel agency.

VARIOUS READERS have written me with possible explanation of why there is a huose here with the strange name of RSTUVWXYZ. Mrs. A. Perkins of Toronto's Harvie Avenue says that "like a flash" it came to her that it breaks up into RSTUV-WXYZ—"Rest of week's easy"... obviously it was a week-end cottage.

H. C. McMorde, who live on Stibbard Avenue, says that it is probably taken from an old mnemonic for memorizing the alphabet:

Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council will ask the courts if the decision to quash a B.C. Electric bus fare increase in Vancouver includes restoration of Victoria bus service, reduced at the same time as the mainland increase was granted by Public Utilities Commission. Vancouver fares were increased last fall from 13 to 15 cents, but were returned a few weeks ago after an appeal to the courts. Rather than a fare increase in Victoria, the PUC allowed B.C. Electric to reduce service here by 10 per cent.

WEST VANCOUVER (CP)—A five-year-old boy was saved from drowning here Wednesday by a gardener who successfully applied artificial respiration in his first attempt.

William Chabotuch was working in the garden of S. P. Cromie when five-year-old Christopher Beveridge from next door tumbled into the Cromie swimming pool.

Chabotuch dragged the boy unconscious from the water and began artificial respiration. Police said he would be recommended for the St. John's award for life saving.

Vancouver May Develop First Co-Operative Cemetery

VANCOUVER (BUP)—The 2,500-member Mount Pleasant offer breaks down to $2,000 an acre.

War Memorial Community Co-operative Association will ask the Vancouver city council today for permission to set up the first non-profit, co-operative cemetery in Canada.

The association, sponsored by the Canadian Legion Branch 177, will offer to buy Vancouver's cemetery site at Burnaby for $400,000 for the new cemetery.

Wednesday the city's cemetery committee completed a report for submission to city council next week regarding an earlier proposal to sell the site to Memorial Gardens Association, a private firm.

It was reported that Memorial Gardens had offered between $1,200 and $1,500 an acre. The Mount Pleasant group

Commission May Challenge 5% Pay Award to Police

City police commission may challenge, through the courts, a recent conciliation board award of 5 per cent pay increase to city policemen.

Commission chairman Mayor Claude Harrison said at a meeting Wednesday "there may be a right to writ of certiorari—for a superior court to examine and determine if the reasons are good in law." Court action is necessary as the board's findings are supposed to be binding on both parties.

After hearing a minority report by police commission nominee J. G. Rutan, which recommended no change in pay, the mayor said he felt it was "the most intelligent summing up of the situation I have heard."

Commission decided to ask the conciliation board majority for written reasons for its decision in awarding the 5 per cent increase.

Criticism that board was "sold on parity" with Vancouver and that commission had "already lost when we went to conciliation," was leveled by commissioners William Hamilton and Gordon Carter. Police Federal Union (TLC) nominee Fred Dougherty of Vancouver, filed the majority report.

Robert Leach of Sidney was board chairman and, with Victoria Police Federation

The meeting was called to consider resolutions designed to amend the constitution of the organization.

Qualicum Firm Wins Ladysmith School Construction Contract

LADYSMITH—Qualicum Construction Co. Ltd. of Qualicum Beach was awarded the contract for construction of the new ten-room Ladysmith Elementary School at a price of $187,700, subject to the approval of the department of education.

A representative group of seven firms tendered on the job with the highest tender being $232,906. The tenders were opened at a special meeting of the school board Monday evening and the final choice was made at a second meeting Tuesday evening.

Completion date stated in the tender was Nov. 1, but principals of the firm have assured that board that they will make every effort to have at least five rooms ready for use by Sept. 1.

If this is possible, it will not be necessary to continue the swing shift after the summer holiday, but it would be necessary to continue using the Market Square School building until at least eight rooms of the new school are ready for use.

Approval of the department is received in time, construction will begin April 25, the date on which Isadore DeFrane has agreed to have the old annex building cleared off the site.

It is possible some work may begin on the grounds prior to that date.

In order to make rooms available for use as soon as possible, the contractors have agreed to

Landowner's Absence Delays $38,520 Duncan Transaction

DUNCAN — Absence of the owner of 47 acres of land on Hospital Hill, west of the city, is holding up sale of the property to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Council of the Cowichan Indian band has indicated that if the owner, Charles Williams, is agreeable to the sale, they will "go along."

Although Williams is actual owner of the land, regulations state he must have the permission of the rest of the band to sell to anyone not in the band.

"We believe Williams is on the west coast," an official of the Indian department said. "His acceptance or rejection of the offer will decide the whole transaction."

Sum offered was $38,520. The land is needed to overcome a lack of housing in the city, and acute shortage of building sites.

It was made to band representatives through Jeffrey Boys, Indian agent, who advised against any attempt to bargain with the Indians.

"Make the best offer," he told a joint meeting of city council and tribal representatives. "I don't think you will get the Indians to go back to the band a second time."

Indians were assured that at time that the land would be resold for the same price paid for it, and that no profit would be made.

Doctors Fined For Failure To Pay Fees

NANAIMO—A number of business and professional men here, delinquent in paying their business license fees for the period from July to December, 1954, wound up in court Wednesday.

Dr. J. B. Lynch and Dr. M. Knightly each paid $53.50 in fines, costs and back fees. Sign painters Wilfred Aldred and Alan Mattson were fined $38.50 each, and O. H. Paulson, merchant and manufacturer, was fined $43.50.

Mrs. R. Cooper, Quarterway, mother of five children, was fined $150 on an impaired driving charge. Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts permitted the accused's husband to pay the fine in two instalments. He said he did not favor such action, but did not want to send the mother of five children to jail.

George Good, appearing on his 11th charge of intoxication, was sentenced to two months in jail.

Recreation Commission Asks Control of Sports Program

NANAIMO—A proposal that the recreation commission arrange allocation of buildings or halls controlled by the school board, and used for basketball, badminton and table tennis, has been made by the commission.

A commission delegation consisting of J. Parker, Fred Noel, and Vince Crawley met members of the District 68 school board Wednesday to present the suggestion.

At present the school board arranges dates and collects rentals for such activities. Under the new proposal the commission would pay rent to the board, then collect from the various groups using the halls. It would also rent required equipment for games.

The commission feels the change would impose no additional expense on taxpayers.

but would co-ordinate rental dates and, according to Mr. Parker, "give the commission a chance to do a better job."

The new recreation superintendent, Alfred Kristiansen, now in Edmonton, is due here May 1.

Teachers' Reaction To TV Series Varied

Majority of Opinion Educational Film Of Greater Value Than Telecasts

TORONTO (CP)—School teachers across Canada have come up with constructive criticism since the CBC produced its experimental school television series last November.

In its current report on the experiment, the CBC says teachers expressed the most diverse opinions on all aspects of each telecast. "Such diversity occurred even with teachers in the same school, viewing the programs under similar conditions with the same grade of pupil."

"This is a healthy sign that television can never become the master, and must always remain the servant of the classroom."

The aims of the November experiment did not include appraisal of the comparative merits—as teaching aids—of television and other media such as films, film strips and audio broadcasts. But such comparisons were made by some teachers.

A typical comment, says the report, would be: "This could have been done equally well or better by educational film." This comment appears most frequently in the evaluation of the three programs produced for the experiment by the National Film Board, especially "Iron From the North," a program on the Ungava iron ore developments.

"Since this program was rated by teachers the most successful of the four telecasts aimed at grades VII and VIII," says the report, "it may be concluded that some teachers would have preferred having this program on a film for classroom projection, rather than viewing it by television; that teachers generally were glad to have the telecast in the absence of a classroom film on the same subject."

SMALLER PICTURE

The visual and aural qualities of sound films are at present superior to those of telecasts. This is partly because films are projected on larger-sized screens, and partly because telecasts, when shown in the experiment over non-connected by line, have to be presented on kinescope which entails some loss of quality.

"Such loss is particularly noticeable whenever kinescope includes film inserts. However, constant improvements are being made to the kinescoping process and the quality of future kinescopes of school telecasts is likely to be much more satisfactory."

Film and television each has its own contribution to make in audio-visual education, the report finds. "While every possible care should be taken to avoid unnecessary duplication, some overlapping between the two media seems inevitable and harmless."

PROGRAM STYLE

Teachers on the whole were satisfied with the amount of teaching material contained in each program. However, there were some complaints that the program contained too much. "This had the double effect of reducing the length of time visuals could be shown and presenting more details than children could absorb," the report says.

On production, the report says development of a topic must be as visual as possible. "The careful and frequent use of maps, charts, models and other visual objects is very important. Teachers were especially responsive to those parts of the experimental programs where such 'visuals' were employed. Animated maps and graphs are very popular with classroom viewers, but the high cost of producing these, almost prohibits their use."

In general, teachers reported that for social studies, dramatization of historical events is feasible and helps the teacher by stimulating pupil interest. "Television can perform a useful service educationally by presenting visits to museums and historic buildings. It can also demonstrate the manner of using objects of historical interest."

Cancer, B.C. Children's Second Deadliest Enemy

More B.C. children die each year from cancer than from any other cause except accidents, according to Dugald Gillespie, chairman of the Victoria Cancer Campaign which is currently under way.

In a message today, aimed at increasing public understanding of the seriousness of the project, he also stated that 8,000 people in the province will discover this year that they have cancer.

Of that total 1,800 will die. Fighting to keep those figures at a minimum, the cancer campaign seeks to raise $200,000 throughout B.C. for research ($61,000) education and publicity ($30,000), welfare ($40,000) and $25,000 for health centres.

He pointed out also that the Victoria cancer clinic does from a third to a half of all the treatment and diagnosis in the province, entirely free of charge in many cases.

By BILL WALKER

For the first time in many years the professional golfers of the city rate as serious threats for the Times Vancouver Island Match Play Open Championship.

And this in no way detracts from Joe Pryke of Gorge Vale who twice previously has been to the semifinals of the event.

For in the past the amateurs have been the ones to watch, and a fine crop there were, and still are, in the city.

But this year, last Sunday at Colwood to be precise, most of the "name" laddies found their reputations suffering as all past champions and most of the pretournament favorites fell by the wayside before a predominately Colwood onslaught.

Heading the parade naturally was Colwood's Bill Court, a fellow who once was so crippled by illness and disease that it was doubtful if he would ever walk again, let alone play golf.

Bill himself will admit that in life's darkest moment he used to crawl on his hands and knees while looking for golf balls at Uplands; and he crawled for the simple reason that he couldn't walk without pain. But golf was his love and he stuck to it, slowly but surely winning the battle from the dread effects of a crippling disease that 10 years ago this month saw him paralyzed from the waist down, virtually wired together and all of 95 pounds of helplessness.

That alone would make Bill's victory a deserved one and a popular verdict. But more so was it because, after many pre-tournament hours of diligent practice, he was stricken with influenza three days before Sunday's scheduled match.

He could have asked that the match be postponed—Fleming in a sportsmanlike gesture proposed that it should be because of Bill's illness—but Bill didn't want it that way, again a tribute to his tremendous spirit.

Still the Stylist

Then there is Pryke who meets Court at Gorge Vale Sunday.

Joe is the stylist of the field. Every move he makes is a picture swing. Only on the greens does he have trouble as has done in the past few years. He'll admit his putting isn't up to birdie standards. But ask Wally Rowe of Gorge Vale about him, and Wally will say:

"He'll hit the greens in two and take his two putts to get down."

It should be quite a match, Pryke, the master stylist, and Court, the acme of determination. Pryke, incidentally, lost to Fleming and Ted Colgate in his two previous semi-final appearances.

Also in the field is Laurie Carroll, assistant professional of Victoria Club. Laurie has the swing and shots to take it all, but a slight tendency to become erratic at times, a fault he is fast overcoming, may be the difference between victory and defeat.

Another of the elite of the past is still much in the running, too. He is former professional Freddy Clunk, who did to George Bigelow Sunday what few golfers have been able to do lately.

Freddy explains his current success simply: "I have been practicing," he said, "with my eyes closed. I must have hit 200 golf balls last week with my eyes shut." Then laughingly he added: "You should never have to look at a golf ball, I don't."

Freddy runs into an interesting match this Sunday when he meets Hugh Morrison of Oak Bay. Hughie is always close and ever a threat.

Bill Picks Porky

Always willing to give credit to others when he thinks it's deserved, Bill Court wouldn't be at all surprised if George Andrews knocks off Laurie Kerr Sunday. This is an all-Colwood affair.

"Andrews," says Court, "is playing as well as anyone in the city at present."

On the other hand, Pryke points to a couple of Gorge Vale's upcoming stars as capable of pulling further surprises in what has been a surprising tourney already.

Johnny Merriman is Joe's first choice to take over where Fleming failed, meeting Si Spaven as he does Sunday, while Bob Herberston may make good use of his home-course knowledge to give Carroll a trying time.

Uplands' hope rest with Frank Seroggs, who will have to be at his best to get by veteran Harold Lineham.

Our congratulations, too, to Sid Watson, on his appointment as Uplands' club secretary. Sid is a well-known sports figure in town—lacrosse and basketball his specialties of the past; bowling and golf his present loves.

'Baby, Don't Fail Me Now'

If professional Joe Pryke of Gorge Vale Golf Club has a secret weapon in his bag for Sunday's Times Island golf championship match with Pro Bill Court of Colwood, it's his putter. Sometimes trusty and sometimes not so trusty, this could be the blade that Joe will use to knife his way into the quarter-finals. The Pryke-Court match features this week's draw. Starting time and other pairings will be found below.

Carson Cooper Dies

HAMILTON, Ont. (CP)—Carson Cooper, professional hockey scout and a famed player 30 years ago, died in hospital today. He was about 56.

Known as "shovel shot" in his playing days, Cooper was an ace right wing both as an amateur and a pro.

Flyers Meet Stamps; Seek to Beat WHL Hex

EDMONTON (CP)—Edmonton Flyers are banking on early leads to flout a Western Hockey League jinx that always has toppled the team finishing on top in the regular schedule running since the new league title was adopted.

Tonight, they'll be plugging for the opening goal in their second game with Calgary Stampers in the best-of-seven league finals.

If they make it, and the pattern holds up, they're assured of another victory. In their last five trips to the playoff post, Flyers have parlayed the opening goal into victory.

Pryke-Court Top Bill, But Hughie Red-Hot Too

While all eyes were about ready to focus on the Bill Court-Joe Pryke match, as the 'one-and-only' Sunday in the Times Island Open golf championship at Gorge Vale, a new figure has suddenly loomed large on the horizon of favorites.

Hugh Morrison of Victoria Club, last year's finalist, and a former Willingdon Cup player, suddenly appears to have regained his past prowess.

Playing at Oak Bay Wednesday, Morrison registered a four-under par 65 including an out-of-bounds penalty on the third hole.

This is only one stroke over the course record for amateurs of 64.

Morrison had six birdies on the first nine and was four under at the turn with 29, as a result of a double bogey six on the third when he was out of bounds. He birdied the first, second, fifth, and then scored the point holes (all par three) in three successive twos, equaling a club record.

On the back nine, he was over par on one hole with a bogey four on 13, but that stroke back with a birdie four on 17 for a par-equalling 36.

He was playing with Victoria Club professional Phil Taylor, Bill Leach and Helmut Goertz at the time.

His card follows:

Out:
Morrison — 426 434 222—29
Par — 334 444 333—33

In:
Morrison — 445 434 444—36—65
Par — 445 334 454—36—69

Morrison meets Freddie Clunk Sunday at the Gorge. Other key matches Sunday pit Vic Painter against Laurie Kerr in an all-Colwood affair, promising Gorge star Bob Herberston against assistant pro Laurie Carroll of Victoria Club; Bill McColl of Colwood against former Uplands champ Bob Woods.

Play also continues in the B championship for the Hugh Francis Trophy.

LENORE GETS BIG WELCOME

OCEAN FALLS, B.C. (BUP)—Lenore Fisher, Canada's 18-year-old back-stroke specialist, was welcomed home Wednesday following her triumph in the Pan-American games at Mexico City.

Almost the entire population of this northern British Columbia hamlet went down to the wharf to welcome Miss Fisher, one of Canada's four gold medalists at the games last month.

Minor league action for Sunday will have Eagles and Macs of the first division meeting at Windsor Park at 2.30 p.m.

Oxford-Cambridge Ruggers Triumph

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP)—The touring Oxford-Cambridge Rugby All-Star team Wednesday defeated Stanford 29-11 in the first of four games in the San Francisco Bay area.

Peter Davies was leading scorer for the English with 13 points. The victory was sixth in seven games of the visitors' North American tour. They lost to the B.C. Reps last Saturday at Vancouver.

Saturday, Oxford-Cambridge will play a group of all-stars in San Francisco. Next week they will play two games with University of California.

SIX TEAMS ENTER SENIOR SOFTBALL

Victoria and District senior "A" men's softball league will be composed of six teams this season.

Newcomer to the loop will be the Tillicum Athletic Club, last year's senior "B" champions, who replaced Butler Brothers. Other teams are Arrow Furniture, Fletchers, Navy, Chinese Students and Duncan.

League schedule will open May 1.

Juvenile Day Soccer Program Set Friday

In goal for Victoria will be Winters, with Hope and Bamford as fullbacks. On the half line will be McLaren, Pickburn and Holroyd. Hibbert will be centre-forward, with Crabbe and Wright insides, and Robb and Travis on the wings.

On the All-Star side, Arnie Ferguson of Heaneys has been replaced by Tom White of JBAA.

In addition to the senior contest, there will be minor league games on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Immediately prior to the Victoria City-All-Stars clash Friday will be a Vancouver Island knockout match between local knockout winners Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans and Cumberland. The game starts at 1.

Opening Good Friday's activities will be another Island knockout game, to be played at Central Park at 11 a.m. Eagles, local third division winners, will meet Nanaimo. Eagles' line-up is as follows: goal, Larry DeCosta; fullbacks, John Hicks and John Beecroft; halfbacks, Tom Wyatt, Jamie Costain and Glen Robbins; forwards, Malcolm Blyth, Art Affleck, Dave Benson, Wes Place and Dave Pollard.

B.C. PLAYOFF

Another afternoon game will see Heaneys, Victoria and District League leaders, meet Labor Craft of Vancouver and District League in an exhibition match at Athletic Park at 2.30.

Minor league action for Sunday will have Eagles and Macs of the first division meeting at Windsor Park at 2.30 p.m.

Alberni Goes Wild Over Champion A's

Island Club Captures Western Title

Alberni 92, Edmonton 67 (Alberni wins best-of-five final, 3-2)

ALBERNI (Special)—The fabulous Alberni Athletics, who staggered through the B.C. final, trotted past the Western Canada championship Wednesday night and now wait to march proudly into the Canadian senior men's basketball championship.

Fired up by a capacity crowd of 1,200 who packed every corner of the Alberni Athletic Hall and kept the air ringing with their chant, "Go A's Go," the Athletics went like fury and defeated Edmonton Towne Hallers, 92-67, in the fifth and deciding game of the western championship.

The victory gave Elmer Spedel's A's the western title three games to two, and qualified them for the Canadian championship, which will open in Alberni next Thursday night. Second game of the best-of-five series goes Friday with succeeding games Saturday, Monday and Tuesday.

Alberni's opponent in their first dominion title series will be the winner of the Sault Ste. Marie Gunners-Ottawa Shaffers series.

JOYOUS OUTBURST

Basketball-crazy even in normal times, the city and citizens of Alberni went wild with joy following Wednesday night's victory. Players were mobbed by delightfully happy fans following the game and car parades wound through the streets until the early hours of the morning.

Coach Spedel, the ex-Marine and former Seattle University player who led the team to the western final last year and to the Canadian final this year, was the hero of the day.

Spedel gave full tribute to the victory to the huddle and spirit of his players and the stout support of the fans.

As a game, Wednesday's victory was anticlimactic after the first four games in the series when Alberni won the opener, lost the second game, won the third and lost the fourth, to extend the series to the full limit. The fifth game was the biggest margin of victory in any of the five games and it was evident right from the start that Alberni was not to be denied.

EARLY LEAD

Breaking with a tremendous starting kick, Alberni ran up a fast 33-7 lead that they never once relinquished. By half-time, the A's were ahead, 46-29, and it was 61-49 halfway through the second half. It was just a question of playing out the string, but Alberni kept up their terrific pace right through to the final whistle.

The closest Edmonton ever got after Alberni's breakaway start came early in the second half, when they pared their deficit to 12 points.

SAMARIN SPARKLES

Tall Joe Samarin, who played the finest basketball of his career in the series, was the outstanding player Wednesday night with his leaping control of the backboards and deadly shooting.

Samarin scored 19 points to share the Alberni scoring lead with Big Ron Bissett. Doug Brinham had 18 points with his accurate jump shot; Al Brown scored 16 and Spedel scored 10, giving the Alberni first string a total of 82 points.

Top man for the losers was Bill Price, who scored 21 points, giving him 81 for the series.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—Sault Ste. Marie Gunners edged Ottawa Shaffers 65-62 here Wednesday night to take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five eastern Canada senior men's basketball finals.

Fourth game of the series will be played here Friday. Gunners came from behind to take a 17-15 lead at the 10-minute mark and from then on were never headed but Ottawa made a fight of it all the way.

Wide-Open Battle Looms in Masters

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Snead or Souchak? Hogan or Hebert? Patton or Palmer? Middlecoff or Mangrum? Who will win the 19th Masters golf championship?

Any one of them could. But maybe none of them will. There are many more fine golfers in the field of 78 who could capture this tournament and earn one of golf's most cherished titles.

Fifty-nine professionals and 19 amateurs were assigned two times for today's first round of the 1955 Masters, which in 21 years has grown in prestige until it ranks second only to the U.S. Open.

The Masters was born a full-blown success in 1934. Grand slam king Bobby Jones, who helped design the Augusta National golf course where the Masters is played, came out of retirement to compete in it.

REAL 'HEADY' SHOT

Freak Goal Gives Pittsburgh Victory

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Shed a tear please for the vanishing Buffalo—victims of the cruellest quirk of fate.

Buffalo Bisons dropped another game in the American Hockey League Calder Cup playoffs Wednesday night when a puck bounced off a Pittsburgh player's head and into Bisons' net.

The strange score, which broke a 2-2 third period deadlock, gave Hornets a 3-2 win and put them ahead 3-1 in the best-of-seven series.

Solinger was standing in front of the Buffalo cage when Pittsburgh captain Frank Mathers fired a wild shot from 15 feet out. The puck struck the wire mesh behind the Bison net, struck Solinger's head on the rebound and dropped into the goal.

Solinger, who required two stitches, gets credit for the third period score because he was the last man to touch the puck before it went into the cage.

Bob Bailey's Suspension May Extend to Next Year

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UP)—Bob Bailey, Pittsburgh Hornet centre who attacked a referee, won't see any more American League hockey this year and his suspension may carry over into next season.

Bailey was suspended for the remainder of the AHL Calder Cup playoffs between Pittsburgh and Buffalo for punching referee Jerry Olinski during last Saturday's game in Pittsburgh.

League president John D. Chick ordered the suspension continued at least until such time as he can meet with the AHL board of governors following the playoffs.

Chick presided at a hearing at which both Bailey and Olinski gave their versions of the incident in which the official was knocked to the ice by the strapping centre. Later Chick said he "alone" will make the final decision on Bailey.

The meeting with the AHL board of governors before final disposition of the case was to do away with the possibility of appeal, Chick said.

Yanks, Dodgers Picked For Major League Flags

NEW YORK (UP)—The Yankees and the Dodgers. That's the way the 1955 major league pennant races shape up to this observer after spending six weeks covering the clubs training in Florida and getting first-hand reports of the three teams which trained in Arizona.

The American League shapes up as a two-club race between the Yankees and the defending champion Indians, with little or no hope for the other six teams. The league figures to be as unbalanced as last year when only three teams—the White Sox, in addition to the Indians and Yankees—won more games than they lost.

But the outlook is different in the National, with six clubs—the Braves, the world champion Giants, the Cardinals, the Redlegs and even the Phillies, in addition to the Dodgers—having a chance. Only the Cubs and the Pirates appear to be on the outside looking in.

Here is how the writer picks them to finish:

AMERICAN LEAGUE
1—New York Yankees.
2—Cleveland Indians.
3—Chicago White Sox.
4—Detroit Tigers.
5—Boston Red Sox.
6—Washington Senators.
7—Baltimore Orioles.
8—Kansas City Athletics.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
1—Brooklyn Dodgers.
2—Milwaukee Braves.
3—New York Giants.
4—St. Louis Cardinals.
5—Cincinnati Redlegs.
6—Philadelphia Phillies.
7—Chicago Cubs.
8—Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Yankees get the nod over the Indians because they have the better defense, more power hitting and a stronger bench. The Indians should come up with the best pitching in the majors, but the defense is porous and the bench only average. The White Sox are likely to run out of gas with a mixture of cast-offs. Picking between the Tigers and Red Sox is tough. For if Ted Williams should come back, Boston, with a fine mixture of youth and veterans, could possibly go all the way. There just isn't any hope for the Senators, Orioles and Athletics—especially the latter club, unless it makes some deals.

The writer agrees with Chuck Dressen's size-up of the Dodgers, the team he led to successive National League pennants in 1952 and 1953 before he was let go.

"They should win even if they come up with a few broken arms and legs, for they have youngsters ready to take over for any veterans."

The weak link in the Dodger scheme of things could be their manager, Walter Alston. He hasn't been the take-charge guy the Dodgers need to keep them hustling, but there are indications that Alston has changed and will assert himself more forcibly. If he doesn't, the Dodgers are likely to blow it again.

The Braves have the strongest pitching in the league but the reports on outfielders Bobby Thomson and Henry Aaron, both of whom broke ankles last season, are not encouraging.

Leo Durocher's Giants are going to defend the flag with the same club and it isn't likely the team will be as lucky as last season in escaping serious injury. The Giants may be short in pitching, too.

If the Cardinals come up with pitching—and the same holds true of the Redlegs—they could win it all. The Phillies need a second baseman, a right fielder and a sturdy Curt Simmons if they hope to be a contender. The Cubs and Pirates are rebuilding and are a couple of years away.

Motion, not color, prompts deer to flee.

Washington Champ
EVERETT, Wash. (AP)—Joe Greer of Yakima defeated Ray Honsberger, Seattle, 3 and 2, to win the 1955 Washington State professional match play golf title Wednesday.

Greer, holder of the same title in 1950, had gained a 6-up lead early in the day only to slip back to even on the 22nd hole. He rallied and closed out the match with a birdie three on the 34th.

portedly expressed regrets for his action. He told newspaper reporters that he had "no comment" to make upon the situation, after leaving the hearing room.

An aggressive player but one without any previous bad record for trouble with officials, Bailey ironically tangled with suspended Montreal star Maurice (the Rocket) Richard in a first fight in Toronto early this season.

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (Reuters). Trinidad, with all its second innings wickets in hand, was three runs behind Australia at close of play Wednesday, the third day of their cricket match here.

Australia, 108 for two wickets overnight, were all out for 299 at tea in reply to Trinidad's first-innings total of 217. The colony was 79 for no wicket in the second innings at close of play.

Les Favell, 66 overnight, added only five more runs before he was caught off pace bowler L. Butler. Butler took three more wickets for a final analysis of five for 93.

Chief resistance came from Gil Langley and Jack Hill in a ninth-wicket stand of 43.

Of the eight Australians dismissed Wednesday Carl Furber caught four.

RIVAL COACHES SILENT

Wings Invade Montreal Tonight

MONTREAL (CP)—Just how long the champion Detroit Red Wings can extend their remarkable winning streak, is one of the questions that will be answered tonight when the Wings and Montreal Canadiens meet in the third game of the Stanley Cup final.

So far, coach Jim Skinner's power-laden crew has won 15 consecutive games, including the elimination of Toronto Maple Leafs in the semifinals and the defeat of the Canadiens in the first two games of the final in Detroit.

No other National Hockey League team has won that many games in a row. The previous record-holders were Boston Bruins, who won 14 straight games during the 1929-30 season. The Bruins feat, however, is still a record for play during the regular season.

GLOOM LIFTING
Meantime, the gloom that drifted over Montreal following the Canadiens' humiliating 7-1 defeat at Detroit Tuesday night appeared to be lifting as die-hard fans convinced themselves that the Montreal club has the stuff to reverse the picture.

However, both coaches—one a rookie and the other a veteran—refused to commit themselves for the third game. The fourth will also be played here Saturday night.

On the train from Detroit Wednesday, Dick Irvin, the veteran Montreal pilot, wasn't downhearted about Montreal's two-game defeat, but made no predictions.

While Skinner said: "I'm only a rookie coach and I don't dare predict anything. Of course I'm pretty happy the way things are. I feel rather sorry for... Irvin... because he has had a rough season, what with Maurice Richard's suspension and everything."

BELIVEAU ILL
Irvin's troubles, besides the loss of Richard, stack up this way: Jean Beliveau, his big centre, is playable but ill. Beliveau suffered an infection in the mouth on arrival in Detroit for the first game Sunday night—Montreal lost 4-2—and this may greatly affect his ability to night.

On the train from Detroit Wednesday, Dick Irvin, the veteran Montreal pilot, wasn't downhearted about Montreal's two-game defeat, but made no predictions.

Mass Vaccination As Typhoid Scare Hits Pincher Creek

PINCHER CREEK, Alta. (CP)—Suspicion pointed to this southern Alberta town's water supply today following a typhoid outbreak.

There were three known and two suspected cases of the disease. A number of cases of virus enteritis also have occurred and health authorities said these could be the forerunners of typhoid.

A mass vaccination program began and blood tests were taken on all workers in food-handling establishments. Authorities expected to know Saturday whether the possibility of a carrier could be ruled out. Milk supplies were being tested. Public health nurses Wednesday vaccinated approximately 900 persons and all residents have been ordered to boil their drinking water.

City's First 'Time-Payment' Fine Imposed

Fine of $377.18 was imposed on K. A. McLeod when he appeared in city police court Wednesday for sentence on a charge of making false or deceptive statements in monthly federal excise tax returns.

He will be allowed to pay the fine on a $100 a month installment plan, provided for under the new Criminal Code. Magistrate Henry C. Hall imposed minimum penalty of $100 plus double the amount of tax that should have been paid. Court was told the $238.58 tax has been paid.

Patricia Bay Highway Bottleneck To Be Replaced By End of Summer

Tenders soon will be called for a new bridge on Douglas Street at Carey Road to be completed this summer.

The present narrow wooden bridge which crosses the CNR railway tracks at No. 1 Saanich fire hall is now a bottleneck in the new Patricia Bay highway outlet.

Cost will be about $85,000, and $25,000 of this will be paid by the CNR.

The new bridge will have a wider roadway and a shift to the west, lining up with the new highway.

Meanwhile, completion of the new highway outlet from Burnside Road to the Thetis Lake area to the northern end of Langford is also expected this summer.

Nova Scotia Boosts House Membership

HALIFAX, N.S. (UP)—The Nova Scotia legislature Wednesday night approved in principle legislation that would boost membership of the House from 37 to 43.

Opposition leader Harold Stanfield, told the House the increase in seats was "completely unjustified."

Henderson, who was originally charged with murder and sought by police for five years, was convicted last fall on the reduced charge in connection with the 1949 slaying of his fiancée, Yvonne Levesque, in a Calgary auto court. He was sentenced to 14 years in prison.

No Sun Glasses Among Spectators, Council Rules

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit's common council Wednesday adopted a resolution barring anyone wearing dark glasses from the council chamber.

Councilman Eugene I. Van Antwerp, who proposed the ban, said more and more spectators at council proceedings are wearing "big, Hollywood-type glasses." And, he added, they make him uncomfortable.

"Suppose one of them shot a councilman—or some other citizen," he said. "How could he be identified?"

IN VICTORIA, IT'S THE BAY FOR COMPLETE ASSORTMENTS OF ALL HOME AND FAMILY NEEDS!

Aldermen Hear Plea For Culture Grants

A PTA delegation which petitioned city council finance committee today for aid to the Arts Centre and Symphony Orchestra will return to City Hall 200 strong to lay their arguments before council April 14.

Finance committee recommended the move.

Mrs. T. R. Kelly, member of the Victoria council of the 5,000-member Parent-Teacher Association, said the delegation she headed this morning was "well and courteously received."

The 25-minute brief which was read to the council committee was not released to the press. The meeting was held in camera. But Mrs. Kelly said later the committee seemed sympathetic to portions dealing with the cultural effect of the gallery and the orchestra on district school children.

The committee also recommended to the delegation that the request for municipal grants also be taken to the councils of Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt. The PTA council said that was the intention.

A PTA convention in Nanaimo on the same date as the next council meeting is expected to weaken the delegation when it goes to council. But officials estimated that the group of 200 at least will be interested in attending the council session.

Mrs. Kelly, well known as an organizer of folk dancing in this area, said the council action is backed by every local PTA group in the area.

The delegation also carries letters of endorsement from national and local cultural groups and the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association.

The Victoria Symphony Orchestra recently stated that it was in urgent need of additional financial support if it were to "avert disaster." Several musicians are going unpaid and the crisis was called "worst in our history."

The Arts Centre has received no grants from the city since 1951. Last year it reduced its resources in scraping up $2,000 back taxes for payment to the city.

No Rent Control

The committee accepted a report from city solicitor Arthur Patton on the matter of rent control and decided not to assume the powers abandoned by the provincial government in this respect. All controls will be lifted May 1.

City council is expected to ratify the decision of the finance committee at its April 14 meeting.

Drop Pay Plan

The committee received a report on a salary survey in other parts of Canada which likely will forestall any attempts to raise annual increment of elected officials here.

Federation of Mayors and Municipalities said that of six comparable-sized cities, only one pays more to mayor and council than Victoria.

At present, with allowances, aldermen here are paid about $1,100 a year, the mayor $5,600.

Heliport Lease

The provincial government has offered ten lots in the Industrial Reserve area, west of the Point Ellice Bridge to the city for use as a heliport site.

Council had earlier asked the province to lease at a nominal sum the area bounded by Tye, Sitkum, Johnson, Alston and Esquimalt Road. It offered to sublet to persons now leasing lots in this area from the province.

But it was reported following the finance committee meeting the province will retain the leased properties and release them to the city as they become available.

Outdoor Theatre For Royal Oak Before Planners

An application for permission to construct an outdoor theatre in Saanich has been submitted to the Saanich Town Planning Commission for consideration.

The commission was expected to deal with the application at a special meeting late today.

The exact location for the outdoor theatre has not been disclosed, but it is indicated that the proposed site is between the Rithet estate, Royal Oak and the Royal Oak Cemetery.

South Vancouver Island Junior Rangers scored 380; Royal Canadian Sea Cadets 357; Royal Canadian Air Cadets 355; Canadian Scottish Army Cadets 351.

Top scorers were Ron Wilson of the Rangers with 98, P.O. E. N. Butler of RCSC Rainbow with 91, Sgt. Ribout of Kinsmen Air Cadets with 95, and Pte. Crockett of the Scottish with 90.

MIRABILE DICTU!

Men Actually Like This Easter's Hats

By TONY DICKASON

Victoria's female population buys double the number of hats in the month before Easter than at any other time of the year, according to millinery salesgirls and hat buyers for leading stores.

Just how many hats this would be hard to estimate, for even if heads were counted, some women purchase chapeaux three and four at a time.

Women, it would seem, become hat-conscious at an early age—some males say even before the age of reason. This might be construed to indicate the fair sex never actually becomes mature in conception of what makes a good hat.

There is one sizeable group of men—not without influence—which maintains the only sane headress is the popular babushka, the 'kerchief daughter' wears to school and mother dons when shopping locally.

However, although extreme fashions of years past have attracted considerable publicity, some favorable, this year's hats are a pretty decent attempt. Even the men may like them, for they are heavy on the feminine side.

This season's offerings break down into six main types: plateau (a flat deal), the pillbox (more or less round) the shell (like half a clam's) straws (as in the wind) the cloche (which defies analysis) and the sailor.

Apparently everybody likes a sailor. This style is one of the most popular.

Parisian designers who set the pace for world hatdom turn out prestige merchandise, some of which sells for $100 to $125 in stores across the country. In Victoria, demand is not for the most expensive, and less chapeaux sell for about $50.

Some Hats Bought, But Never Worn

Average cost for a good lid is about $10. At the numerous hat bars which dot city stores, cheaper varieties sell like hot-cross buns at this season. They range from $3.98.

Several somewhat peculiar factors come up in relation to women and their hats. According to people in the business, there are a large number of the gentle sex who hoard hats. They buy 'em, put 'em on the shelf, take 'em out to look at with proud, possessive eyes, then put 'em back and never wear 'em at all!

And women exchange hats. When Philomena thinks Phoebe's mauve pillbox will go well with her own tweed rompers, for example, Phoebe rarely seems to mind the borrowing. It would be difficult to imagine the same situation among men.

BCE Cable Cost Ruling Sought

COUGARS BEWARE: DRUMMER SEARCHING FOR NEW APRON

The sharp eyes of the B.C. Game Office staff here will be on the watch for a cougar skin to make an apron for the bass drummer of the bugle and drum band of 40th Technical Squadron, RCEME (M).

The squadron prefers a tanned skin, but has stipulated that the head must be intact.

Game officer Don Kiers today promised he will be on the watch for a good skin, and put the hunter into contact with the unit.

Bugle Major J. G. Quinn expects the band to be up to full strength next week, but wants a surplus so bandsmen can enroll for technical training courses without weakening band strength.

Saanich Asks PUC Decision

Saanich will ask the Public Utilities Commission whether the public or the B.C. Electric Co. would have to pay the additional costs of placing high voltage lines underground in the municipality.

The decision was made at a special Saanich Council meeting Wednesday.

The meeting was called to discuss with B.C. Electric Co. officials a controversial $1,000,000 power project, which includes construction of a substation near Borden Street in Lake Hill, and the erection of 132,000-volt line on steel towers through the municipality.

The two parties were unable to agree.

"We are no further ahead than we were a year ago," said Mr. George Austin, acting reeve, after the meeting.

The main discussions between the council and BCE officials centred around the erection of overhead transmission lines to run from the BCE Goward substation, Interurban Road, to the proposed Borden Street site.

The company still opposed paying the extra costs for sinking the lines underground. It contended such a project would be too costly.

HURT VALUES

Householders in the Lake Hill, Cedar Hill and Mount Douglas districts want the BCE to put the electric cables underground. They claim overhead transmission lines will affect property values and interfere with television reception.

Councillors Wednesday argued at length over who would pay the costs, if the municipality should decide to force the company to lay its cables underground. They finally decided to seek an answer from the Public Utilities Commission.

Mr. George Austin also said another public hearing will be held to discuss the project with householders and the BCE. This will be called after the council has a PUC ruling.

Dockyard Workers Cold-Shoulder SIU

Infiltration of 'Gangster-Dominated' Union Feared in Local Labor Circles

An attempt to enlist HMC Dockyard workers as Seafarers' International Union affiliates was squashed recently.

This was revealed today by J. E. Carey, B.C. vice-president of the National Defense Employees' Association, following a meeting of Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council Wednesday night, when fear was expressed the SIU would infiltrate Dockyard.

The SIU was called a "gangster-dominated" organization by TLC delegates and officials.

Council passed a resolution asking the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada to verify statements made public recently in a Canadian magazine concerning a criminal record of H. Banks, Canadian organizer of the SIU, and an alliance with the Association of Government Seafarers, Wharf and Yard Employees.

Said T. C. Gooderham, Vancouver Island organizer for the TLC:

"This council went on record as being in approval of cleaning up the Communist-led CSU by turning over to the SIU."

He acknowledged that an "SIU organizer was at work in Victoria, but knew no details."

Secretary Percy Rayment said: "Most of us did not know 10 years ago that Hal Banks was a 'gangster.'"

If his record is true, the TLC wants the congress to ask the government to deport Banks, an American by birth whose admittance to Canada was sanctioned allegedly by the federal government.

According to council delegates from the Boilermakers' Union, a Banks' henchman—identified only as "Sterling"—arrived in Victoria recently to attempt further organization of Dockyard employees.

Mr. Carey told The Times:

Car Jockey Hearing Put Over Once More

Car Jockey Rudolph Zembrodt, 16, 1202 Fort Street, was remanded to April 15 to set a date for completion of a preliminary hearing on a manslaughter charge when he appeared in city police court today.

He was charged following the death of John T. Gawthrop, 1115 Leonard, January 16, four days after an accident at Hillside and Blackwood.

Gawthrop and Zembrodt were the drivers of the two cars in collision.

Traffic Death Ruled Accident at Inquest

It took a coroner's jury two minutes this morning to return a verdict of accidental death with no blame attached at an inquest into the Island Highway death Monday of 78-year-old David T. Nelson, 126 St. Giles.

The elderly man was struck by a car driven by Alan D. McCormick, 26, 1120 McClure, just after alighting from a friend's car on the new Island Highway near Hekmcken Road.

He had been watching TV at another friend's house and was driven to the intersection of the highway and St. Giles at about 10:30 p.m. by John G. Leighton, who met the deceased for the first time that evening.

WARNING

Mr. Leighton said his wife, who was also in the car, warned Mr. Nelson before he alighted not to cross the highway while there were cars coming.

Looking back before they pulled away from the side of the highway, the couple saw Mr. Nelson waiting at the edge of the road while one car passed.

Then Mrs. Leighton looked back again and said, "Well, he's starting," and it was then McCormick's car approached, heading towards Victoria.

Its headlights silhouetted the deceased said Mr. Leighton, as the pedestrian was about half way across the highway headed toward his house.

"He seemed to try to run," Mr. Leighton told the inquest. Mrs. Leighton cried out to him there was a car coming, and he apparently understood.

Mrs. Leighton told the inquest Mr. Nelson smiled and nodded as though he heard her warning, and the next thing she knew he "seemed to be rising above the hood of the car."

DRIVER SLOWED

"I'm sure the driver slowed up and tried to avoid the man," she said.

Mr. Nelson was wearing a hearing aid, Mrs. Leighton said. Her husband said the deceased was wearing dark clothing, but thought that if he had turned around when Mrs. Leighton cried out, the accident would have been avoided.

The driver, who gave evidence under the Canada Evidence Act, said his speed was between 40 and 50 miles an hour. The area in which the accident occurred is a 50 miles an hour zone.

He said he saw the Leighton

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

A friend of mine had a most disturbing experience in a downtown pub the other day.

He ordered a cheese sandwich, and when it was delivered to him, he discovered it was a cheese sandwich with mayonnaise.

At least, he thinks it was, although he admits it might have been a mayonnaise sandwich with cheese.

But what disturbs my friend is, he likes a cheese sandwich with his beer. And he hates mayonnaise. Also, he is the sensitive, rather shy type.

He says he'd feel a proper fool, ordering a cheese sandwich without mayonnaise.

Speaking of food (if a cheese sandwich with mayonnaise can be called food) a learned scientist has discovered a person can be typed by his taste.

Dr. Arthur L. Fox, research director for a soap manufacturer, has conducted experiments which convince him all people fall into four taste categories: bitter-salty; bitter-sweet; tasteless-salty; and bitter-bitter.

You can tell what foods an individual will like, Dr. Fox says, by having him put on his tongue a smidgen of phenylthiocarbamide.

Your taste reaction to phenylthiocarbamide will determine whether you are bitter-sweet, tasteless-salty, or just plain disgusted.

The above information is relayed to you in line with Between Times policy of getting solid information into this space, somehow or other.

The strike situation throughout B.C. has improved greatly for the first three months this year compared with the similar period in 1954, it was revealed today.

Stock Up for Easter Sunday
Special Family Dinner

By PENNY SAVER

It seems there's no end to preparing for one big meal or another. Now we shop for Easter Sunday's dinner. This weekend is your last chance to get fresh brussels sprouts from local growers. They are 20 cents a pound, and the tops, which are leafy and full, are 15 cents a pound. Teamed up with fresh carrots at 15 cents a package, you have the beginning of a very colorful and attractive meal. Next week-end you may see local asparagus making a debut.

How about sweet yellow yams... they're only 25 cents a pound, and what could taste better with your glazed ham.

Do you dress the ham up with pineapple and all the trimmings? I sure do 'cause every one in our house loves it that way. For a real splash of color buy some glaze pineapple in red or yellow. They sell at 15 cents for two slices. Or you can buy the tinned variety, sliced at 39 cents per tin, crushed, 24 cents, and chunks at two tins for 49 cents.

Dot cloves in and around the pineapple, then add some cherries. Glaze cherries in red cost 29 cents a carton and green ones (creme de menthe flavor) cost 27 cents a jar.

Honey, either solid or liquid, sprinkled with a bit of cinnamon and poured over the ham at intervals, will put the finishing touches on a very, very tasty ham.

Let's decorate the dinner table with some cut flowers or a plant. Tulips are selling at 80 cents a dozen in rainbow colors, solid or striped. I saw a cyclamen plant in a gorgeous hue and a cineraria plant that really broke down my resistance. The blooms are so fresh and healthy they brighten almost any room in the house. They aren't so very expensive either. Priced from $1 to $5 they'd make someone a very nice Easter gift.

I tasted something the other night that I thought you might like. Mandarin orange sections, tinned and bottled in their own juice. Sweet and delicious as can be.

A tin costs 21 cents and the larger jar costs 29 cents. You can feed them to the children, and they'll yell for more. Grown-ups too. Top a scoop or two of ice cream with these sections, and there you have a sundae that's good tasting and good for you too.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Teenagers Must Watch
Figures and Health

Today I am printing a poem written by a young reader. She thought you might get a laugh out of it.

If there are pounds
All over me,
And flesh and fat
Hang loose and free,

If when I wear
My "crazy pants"
The crowds begin
Those nasty chants,

If when friends move
The antique chair
Because they've heard
I'm coming there

Or when I take
A whim to swim
Small crafts are warned
When I dive in,

It must be time
To exercise,
To diet too,
Remove disguise

Of fatty flesh
In layers thick,
All guaranteed
To make one sick.

I think that is a very clever little rhyme! It reminded me that it is about time to talk again to teenagers about their figures.

Don't get silly ideas and ruin your health by trying faddish diets! You are still growing and developing and you need a well-planned and adequate diet. You require many more calories now than you will when you are older.

It is important to you to lose some weight if you are overweight, because this makes you self-conscious and makes it difficult for you to be your own natural self. However, do this in a sensible way.

Eat a well-balanced diet which has all of the essentials of health. Also, consume the calories you should have for your age, but do not eat more than that. Do not stuff yourself!

As a general rule you should just cut down on extremely rich desserts. Do without calorie-rich soda fountain mixtures and candy bars. Eat fresh fruit instead. You can pour the cream off of your milk but drink plenty of milk. Eliminate all those tidbits you have been indulging in. Remember, most of all, get up from the table feeling satisfied but not stuffed.

Parrott, films; Mrs. W. F. Mawdsley, press and publicity; Mrs. Elsie Lowthian, hospitality; Mrs. F. H. Parsons, Canadian Consumers Association.

Monopoly Charged In Liquor Industry

BALTIMORE (AP)—A large segment of the liquor industry was indicted by a federal grand jury Wednesday on charges of unlawful conspiracy to "raise, fix, maintain and stabilize" wholesale and retail prices.

Named in the indictments, returned under anti-trust laws, were 54 defendants. They included 14 distillers, seven wholesalers, three trade associations and 31 individuals.

Federal Judge Roszell C. Thomson scheduled an arraignment under the indictments for May 6 after hearing a plea from government lawyers for early action.

The judge also signed an order calling for impounding a huge volume of corporate records of the liquor industry and its branches. The records already had been subpoenaed by the grand jury.

Distillers indicted were National Distillers Products Corp., Joseph E. Seagram and Sons Inc., Distillers Distributing Corp., Hiram Walker and Sons Inc., Hiram Walker Inc., Gooderham and Worts Ltd., James Barclay and Co. Ltd., Schenley Industries Inc., Schenley Distributors Inc., Melrose Distillers Inc., Dant Distilling and Distributing Co., CVA Corp., McKesson and Robbins Inc., and Crossett and Blackwell Co.

WIFE NO. 1 'CONSIDERABLY GRIEVED'

Pakistan's Premier Makes Canadian Girl Second Begum

KARACHI (AP)—Prime Minister Mohammed Ali has taken a second wife—a Canadian—and aroused Pakistani feminist groups in this Moslem state today called emergency meetings to discuss the event.

An official of his household disclosed today that the 45-year-old prime minister married his ex-secretary, Miss Alya Saddy, 28, formerly of Edmonton, in Beirut, Lebanon, last Saturday. The news was later released officially to the Pakistani people in an announcement from the prime minister's house.

"Now it has happened, let us pray everything passes peacefully," the official said.

Moslems are permitted four wives, but many feminist groups here oppose the ancient custom. The Karachi branch of the All-Pakistan Women's Association has called an emergency meeting, and other women's organizations are expected to follow suit.

FORMAL WELCOME

All brought his new wife home from Beirut Wednesday. She was formally received by a delegation of cabinet ministers and officials at the airport.

A room had been prepared for her on the first floor of Ali's residence. In another room on the same floor lives Ali's first wife, Hamida Begum, 40, the mother of two grown boys.

"Hamida's private secretary told a reporter today that the begum is 'considerably' gripped." She stays in her room and dines alone.

The official said both wives will stay in Ali's residence for the present—unless Hamida decides to move elsewhere.

Miss Saddy began working for Ali when he was in Ottawa five years ago.

She is the daughter of parents who emigrated to Canada from a part of Syria which now is in Lebanon. Their daughter was born in Warlow, in southern Alberta, and educated at Edmonton.

Miss Saddy was born at Warlow in southern Alberta and educated in Edmonton. Her father and mother, both from a Syrian area now part of Lebanon, met and married in Canada.

She first met Mohammed Ali socially in 1949 at Ottawa when he was Pakistan's high commissioner to Canada. They met again when he toured western Canada, and in January, 1952, she went to work in the Pakistan high commissioner's office in Ottawa.

When Mohammed Ali was appointed Pakistan's ambassador to the United States the following December, Miss Saddy went to Washington as his social secretary. She retained her position when he became prime minister in April, 1953.

She accompanied Mohammed Ali to talks on the state of Kashmir in New Delhi, India, and a conference of Asian prime ministers in Colombo, Ceylon. She has been to Turkey, Egypt and other countries.

Irish Poetess Dies at Toronto

NATION-WIDE TRAINING FOR TEEN-AGE DRIVERS

OTTAWA (BUP)—Former defense minister Brooke Claxton urged today that some form of country-wide training program be set up to teach boys and girls how to drive automobiles safely.

Claxton, an insurance company executive since last July 1, announced at a press conference that Canada's first national highway safety conference will be held here May 24-26. The meetings will delve into ways to eliminate accidents that kill nearly 3,000 Canadians, injure 60,000 and cause property damage of more than $100,000,000.

Stay Away From USSR U.S. Tells Physicists

Briton Warned of Loss of Visa; 'Clear Case of Stupid Law,' He Says

NEW YORK (AP)—Two physicists—one a British subject—say they were advised by United States government officials to turn down invitations to a Moscow scientific conference.

Prof. Richard R. Feynman of the California Institute of Technology and Dr. Freeman J. Dyson, a Briton working at the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N. J., said they first accepted the Soviet invitation, as no "classified" matters were on agenda of the Moscow meeting.

But, said Feynman, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission advised him not to go, on the ground that it would be an "unwarranted risk."

Feynman said he had done classified work on the atom bomb project during the war, and recently consulted with the army on a "highly classified" subject.

Dyson said he told the Russians he would attend the conference, which opened March 31, if he could obtain the necessary papers.

Later, Dyson said, the U.S. immigration service informed him that even the granting of a re-entry permit would not guarantee that he could get back into the U.S.

"This is a clear case in which the law has been proved stupid," Dyson said. "The conference would probably have been well worth while."

He added, however, that he could see how participation by western scientists might have been used by the Russians for propaganda purposes.

Street Beggar Arrested Under Amended Code

Now Illegal
To Ask Alms

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Frolick, 57, who has been accepting alms outside the Hudson Bay Co. store here for more than 10 years was arrested Wednesday and charged with begging.

It was the first such case laid here under the new Criminal Code. Under the new code, it is illegal to stand in a public place and ask for alms. Police told Frolick he was liable to two years imprisonment or a fine, but he ignored the warning.

Under the old Criminal Code which became obsolete April 1, Frolick couldn't be arrested as long as he had one letter from a clergyman or two letters from justices of peace giving him the right to ask for alms.

When he ignored the warning, police arrested him, seizing a cardboard placard sign, gunnysack and a small tin with a slot in the top. He was remanded one week.

Frolick uses crutches and claims disability through an industrial accident. He has appeared before Chief Justice Sloan commissions twice without success in his attempts to secure compensation.

ZSA ZSA FREE; PORFIRIO TO BE HER FOURTH?

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Actress Zsa Zsa Gabor is free to marry playboy-diplomat Porfirio Rubirosa if she desires.

Miss Gabor's attorney Wednesday picked up her final decree of divorce from actor George Sanders, her third husband.

However, the actress recently indicated she might have a second thought about marrying Rubirosa because she wants to continue her American film career but would have to live in Paris if she married him.

10-Year Term For Father Of 'Aquatot'

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UP) — The Florida Supreme Court Wednesday ordered Russell Tongay to serve 10 years at hard labor for the high-diver death of his world famous "Aquatot" daughter.

Tongay, a husky 37-year-old ex-Coastguardman, has been free on appeal since his sentencing in January, 1954. His attorney said he probably will petition the high tribunal for a re-hearing on Wednesday's decision upholding the manslaughter conviction.

One of Tongay's attorneys said they have 15 days in which to file for a re-hearing and during that time Tongay's $5,000 bond will be continued. The attorney said Tongay is in Miami now, but he was not immediately available for comment.

Film Stars Join Ranks Of Producers

Tax Setup Reason
For Latest Vogue

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —

"Every star wants to get into the act." That variation of the Jimmy Durante lament might be voiced by any film producer these days. Almost every day a film performer announces creation of a firm to produce movies.

Look at the names of those who have plans to produce their own pictures: Burt Lancaster, Marilyn Monroe, Marlon Brando, Joan Crawford, Rita Hayworth, Jane Russell, Lucille Ball, Desi Arnaz, Cornel Wilde, Henry Fonda, Kirk Douglas, Robert Mitchum, Frank Sinatra, Errol Flynn, Dick Powell, June Allyson, Jane Wyman, Ann Sothern, James Mason.

The majority of these players have made deals with the bustling United Artists firm, which is certainly living up to its name. As a matter of fact, the company was founded on the same principal 35 years ago, as a releasing company for producers Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Charlie Chaplin and D. W. Griffith.

The focal point for the producer-star deals on this coast is the office of Robert Blumof, vice-president in charge of Hollywood operations for U.A. He explained why stars are turning producers:

"It's because the present tax setup is extremely unfair for performers. Sure, the star makes a lot of money, but his span of high earning is short. It's possible for a star to be rich one year and broke the next."

"Stars are naturally looking for ways to spread their earnings over a period of years. The production setup is one way to do that. When the stars own their films, they have a large residual value that can be realized in many ways."

Judge Wants Marilyn In Court

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — A judge who reads the newspapers issued a new warrant for the arrest of Marilyn Monroe Wednesday because he couldn't understand why she was well enough to ride an elephant but had been too ill to appear in court in answer to a traffic citation.

Municipal Judge Charles J. Griffin refused to grant another continuance for the film star to answer charges of driving without a valid operator's license November 21.

At the same time, the Beverly Hills judge forfeited a $100 bond put up for the actress by Morris Brown, Champaign, Ill., in the hope Marilyn would visit him sometime.

The judge set Miss Monroe's new trial date for May 31 and set her new bail at $2,000 as well as assessing her $13 for failure to appear Wednesday. Her trial had been delayed before on claims she was too ill in New York to come here.

But Judge Griffin noted "I read where she was to ride an elephant and yet a doctor's certificate said she couldn't come here last month."

Employers Grab UBC Graduates

VANCOUVER (CP) — This year's crop of University of B.C. graduates are being swamped with job offers, University personnel director John F. McLean said today.

Canada's unemployment problem will not affect the young graduates who are being quickly snapped up by prospective employers, he said.

SASKATCHEWAN HASSLE

Woman Heals Breach In Liberal Ranks

REGINA (CP)—Two warring groups in the Saskatchewan Liberal party—one seeking provincial autonomy and the other federal control over the provincial party—have agreed to a compromise in selection of a new Liberal association secretary, the first step in uniting party strength.

The Saskatchewan Liberal Association executive, meeting behind closed doors Wednesday in what was termed a caucus to review the legislative session and draw up summer campaign plans, named Mrs. Marjorie Totten, a minor association employee, to the post.

A spokesman Wednesday night said she will hold the job until a new man can be found who will satisfy all party factions. Mrs. Totten is the third secretary in the last nine weeks. Juggling of the position reopened a breach between young and "old-guard" Liberals which was evident last fall at the convention which elected A. H. "Hammy" McDonald as new Liberal leader.

Mr. McDonald replaced Glen Bruce as secretary with Sam Carr, member of the legislature for Rosthern. Mr. Carr quit last week and Mr. Bruce was reappointed. Mrs. Totten will not take on the organization duties which go with the job.

CROSSWORD ANSWER TO APPEAR SATURDAY

Because there will be no issue of The Times on Good Friday, results of the weekly crossword contest will be announced in Saturday's editions, along with the next puzzle. The new puzzle will be printed in the Saturday, Monday and Tuesday editions, with a 24-hour extension, until Thursday, the deadline for entries.

Easter Holiday Face Dull Weather

Lowering clouds usually associated with Good Friday will be present this year, the Victoria weather office predicts.

But after a showery morning, the sun is expected to break through occasionally in the afternoon.

"There are enough weather disturbances on the map to ensure unsettled weather," weatherman Bill Mackie said. "Indications are for clouds today and Friday, with showers, especially tonight and Friday morning."

Temperatures will be cooler, with an expected high Friday of 53, low 42. And more of the same is likely for the balance of the Easter week-end.

TCA BUSY

Trans-Canada Airlines has scheduled seven extra round-trip flights to Vancouver today, two of them to be flown by 48-passenger North Stars. An extra flight to Seattle is also scheduled.

FLOODS IN QUEBEC, PRAIRIES

265 Fear Starvation In Snowbound Village

Road Cut 17 Days By 8-Foot Drifts

(Compiled from CP Dispatches)

MONTREAL—Starvation threatens St. Hilaire de Dorset, farm village 75 miles south of Quebec City, where 265 residents are short of food after being snowbound for 17 days.

Meanwhile, at Chateauguay Basin, 20 miles south of Montreal—less than 175 miles from St. Hilaire—ravaging spring floods raced through the streets today forcing 750 families from their homes.

The food-shortage at St. Hilaire became known early today. The village priest, Rev. Armand Germain, said in a telephone appeal for help, that 8-foot drifts cut off the village from the nearest railway station, St. Evariste, nine miles north, late in March.

FOOD RUNS OUT

Animals are near starvation and provisions at the parish church which Father Germain has been sharing with villagers are nearly exhausted, the priest said. There is no doctor at St. Hilaire.

Eight men working in a maple sugaring camp near the village have run out of food.

"They asked me for provisions today but I had to turn them down. I had just given food to a 10-year-old boy who hauled a sled two miles from his farm for food."

Three snowstorms, one of them a blinding, two-day blizzard in late March, cut off the village from highway communication with other towns, Father Germain said.

Some villagers travelled on foot through knee-deep snow Sunday to St. Evariste for food. But the going was difficult and the provisions they carried back would not last long.

ICE JAMS RIVER

At Chateauguay Basin, ravaging spring floods raced through the town when the ice-covered Chateauguay River began breaking up shortly after midnight.

Huge ice floes jammed the river's mouth, raising the water level by six feet within hours.

The river burst its banks and sent about 2½ feet of water into homes, business establishments and hotels.

Residents, with boats, were busy evacuating the flood victims. No injuries or fatalities were reported.

Ice-Jam Floods Spill Into Prairie Centres

CP and BUP Dispatches

WINNIPEG—Market gardens in the low-lying Brandon flats are being threatened by the rising waters of the Assiniboine River.

George Durnin, city engineer, said Wednesday night that ice on the river was blocking the movement of the spring runoff, in turn causing the high water level.

"Unless the ice moves soon," he said, "we're going to have a flood on our hands."

Water was just one foot from the top of the dikes at their lowest point Wednesday night but speed of the rise had fallen off and crews of workmen, however, continued to bolster and heighten the dikes.

Meanwhile flood headwaters began worrying farmers and towns in Saskatchewan, where spring run-offs have sent the Qu'Appelle River, streams and rivers lapping over their banks in many places.

At Carnduff, the normally quiet Antler Creek has gone on a spring flooding spree for the first time in 20 years. It took one of the municipal bridges with it, besides seriously weakening a concrete span on No. 1 highway bridge.

The Pipestone River began overflowing the spillway of the new Pipestone dam near the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border. Federal irrigation experts estimated it would take two years or more of normal flow to fill the nine-mile-long reservoir behind the earth-filled dam. It took three days.

At Tantalona, 160 miles northeast of Regina, citizens were using boats to negotiate some streets in the village under 2½ feet of water from the Qu'Appelle River.

Macmillan Succeeds Anthony Eden

Named Britain's Foreign Secretary

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden tonight named Harold Macmillan foreign minister in a cabinet reshuffle, preliminary to a general election.

Selwyn Lloyd has been moved up to full cabinet rank and will take over the defense post.

The first cabinet session lasted 65 minutes. No announcement was made at its end, and a calm descended on British politics. Parliament adjourned until April 19 for the Easter recess. The Queen went to Windsor. And the Edens remained in their present home. They planned to move into No. 10 Downing Street after Easter Sunday.

Among the last to leave the cabinet session, which official sources said was quiet, were Macmillan and Lloyd.

Lord Woolton, chairman of the Conservative party, was hailed by the crowd with cries of, "when's the election for?" He nodded knowingly but said nothing.

Eden was vigorous and obviously elated at taking over the government. His first cabinet session started promptly at 3 p.m., just 28 hours after he knelt and kissed Queen Elizabeth's hand in token of accepting office.

He stayed away from a swearing-in ceremony at Buckingham Palace, apparently because he hopes to make a few cabinet changes before presenting the list officially.

Eden may decide, however, to ride through the anticipated general election with the same cabinet, rather than risk going before the electorate with a group of strange faces.

GETS LATEST FIGURES

The general election apparently was in the forefront of his thinking, since the Conservative party's central office rushed complete figures to the cabinet room on all the local county council elections held in England and Wales since March 31.

The figures showed the opposition Socialists lost 14.56 per cent of the seats they held. The Socialists lost control of five councils. They also lost a net total of 175 seats.

Political experts pointed out that these figures do not necessarily reflect what might happen in a national election. In the county council balloting, the turnout is small, local issues predominate and the national newspapers have been on strike.

However, the figures furnished fuel to Conservative politicians to urge Eden to stage a general election as soon as possible.

3 Held at Vancouver In Tax Refund Fraud

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police said today they had made three arrests and laid two charges in connection with a giant income tax fraud scheme revealed here Wednesday.

"However," said detective Alex Stobie, "the story broke at the wrong time. The publicity has hurt the investigation."

Police had planned about 50 arrests in the cleanup, and said that many of those guilty of fraud probably have left town or gone into hiding as the result of the publicity given the story.

HAVE NO ESTIMATE

Police said forged T4 slips were sold to city tax dealers, but said they had no accurate estimate of the amount of money involved although it might run to "thousands of dollars."

The dealers purchased the slips, all of which showed income tax refunds due to holder, at 50 per cent of the face value of the refund.

Large numbers of persons here, particularly transient loggers, sell their T4 slips in this manner to avoid the usual three or four-month wait involved in regular returns from the revenue department.

The owner of the slip signs the full amount of the return over to the tax dealer, who then collects from the government in the usual way.

J. Gear McEntyre, deputy minister of taxation, said in Ottawa today that an investigation has been launched.

However, Mr. McEntyre and other revenue department officials said they could not disclose details of the alleged fraud while it is under police investigation.

Mr. McEntyre said the department has received a report in connection with the arrest at Vancouver of Ludger H. Tasse, Montreal accountant.

"There has been no suggestion made to us as yet that hundreds of persons may be involved," Mr. McEntyre said commenting on published reports. "That's news to me."

Revenue department officials said it is not illegal for a taxpayer to collect a legal rebate in advance from a tax dealer and to pay a fee for this service. This enabled the taxpayer to receive his rebate immediately instead of waiting one to three months for the return to be processed by the revenue department.

Macmillan

Anthony EdenNamed Britain's
Foreign Secretary

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden tonight named Harold Macmillan foreign minister in a cabinet reshuffle preliminary to a general election.

Selwyn Lloyd has been moved up to full cabinet rank and will take over the defense post.

These were the only two changes affecting posts of cabinet rank.

The Earl of Home was appointed secretary for Commonwealth relations.

Reginald Maundling was named minister of supply.

Other posts filled were: Postmaster general — Dr. Charles Hill.

Minister of state, Scottish office — Cmdr. T. D. Galbraith.

Economic secretary to the treasury — Sir Edward Boyle.

PEERAGE FOR SWINTON
Hill replaces Earl de la Warr as postmaster general and the Earl of Home takes over from Viscount Swinton who was created an earl, next step in the peerage for his services to the nation. Swinton leaves the government.

The cabinet changes were announced 24 hours after Eden succeeded Sir Winston Churchill as prime minister.

The first cabinet session lasted 65 minutes. No announcement was made at its end, and a calm descended on British politics. Parliament adjourned until April 19 for the Easter recess. The Queen went to Windsor. And the Edens remain in their present home.

They planned to move into No. 10 Downing Street after Easter Sunday.

265 in Quebec Town
Face Starvation

(Compiled from CP Dispatches)

MONTREAL—Starvation threatens St. Hilaire de Dorset, farm village 75 miles south of Quebec City, where 265 residents are short of food after being snowbound for 17 days.

Meanwhile, at Chateauguay Basin, 20 miles south of Montreal—less than 175 miles from St. Hilaire—ravaging spring floods raced through the streets today forcing 750 families from their homes.

The food shortage at St. Hilaire became known early today. The village priest, Rev. Armand Germain, said in a telephone appeal for help, that 8-foot drifts cut off the village from the nearest railway station, St. Evariste, nine miles north, late in March.

FOOD RUNS OUT
Animals are near starvation and provisions at the parish church which Father Germain has been sharing with villagers are nearly exhausted, the priest said. There is no doctor at St. Hilaire.

Eight men working in a maple sugaring camp near the village have run out of food.

"They asked me for provisions today but I had to turn them down. I had just given food to a 10-year-old boy who hauled a sled two miles from his farm for food."

Three snowstorms, one of them a blinding, two-day blizzard in late March, cut off the village from highway communication with other towns, Father Germain said.

Some villagers travelled on foot through knee-deep snow Sunday to St. Evariste for food. But the going was difficult and the provisions they carried back would not last long.

ICE JAMS RIVER
At Chateauguay Basin, ravaging spring floods raced through the town when the ice-covered Chateauguay River began breaking up shortly after midnight.

Some 750 families had to quit their homes.

Huge ice floes jammed the river's mouth, raising the water level by six feet within hours.

The river burst its banks and sent about 2½ feet of water into homes, business establishments and hotels.

Residents, with boats, were busy evacuating the flood victims. No injuries or fatalities were reported.

Floods Threaten Prairies
CP and BUP Dispatches
WINNIPEG—Market gardens in the low-lying Brandon flats are being threatened by the rising waters of the Assiniboine River.

George Durnin, city engineer, said Wednesday night that ice on the river was blocking the movement of the spring run off, in turn causing the high water level.

"Unless the ice moves soon," he said, "we're going to have a flood on our hands."

Water was just one foot from the top of the dikes at their lowest point Wednesday midnight but speed of the rise had fallen off and crews of workmen, however, continued to bolster and heighten the dikes.

Meanwhile flood headaches began worrying farms and towns in Saskatchewan, where spring run-offs have sent streams and rivers lapping over their banks in many places.

At Carnduff, the normally quiet Antler Creek has gone on a spring flooding spree for the first time in 20 years. It took one of the municipal bridges with it, besides seriously weakening a concrete span on No. 1 highway bridge.

The Pipestone River began overflowing the spillway of the new Pipestone dam near the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border. Federal irrigation experts estimated it would take two years or more of normal flow to fill the nine-mile-long reservoir behind the earth-filled dam. It took three days.

At Tantallon, 160 miles northeast of Regina, citizens were using boats to negotiate some streets in the village under 2½ feet of water from the Qu'Appelle River.

Easter Holiday
Face Dull Weather

Lowering clouds usually associated with Good Friday will be present this year, the Victoria weather office predicts.

But after a showery morning, the sun is expected to break through occasionally in the afternoon.

"There are enough weather disturbances on the map to ensure unsettled weather," weatherman Bill Mackie said. "Indications are for clouds today and Friday, with showers, especially tonight and Friday morning."

Temperatures will be cooler, with an expected high Friday of 53, low 42. And more of the same is likely for the balance of the Easter week-end.

Trans-Canada Airlines has scheduled seven extra round-trip flights to Vancouver today, two of them to be flown by 48-passenger North Stars. An extra flight to Seattle is also scheduled.

Three extras will be flown Sunday, four Monday. All were booked solid at press time.

Canadian Pacific Railway, Black Ball Lines and Vancouver Island Coach Lines also anticipate heavy traffic over the week-end. Cabin and car space is sold out on the CPR mid-night steamer to Vancouver tonight.

Coach Lines have scheduled the first of the summer "mystery trips" for Good Friday and the second for Easter Sunday. Sightseeing buses expected to be busy over the week-end.

Bars and beverage rooms will be closed Good Friday, and no liquor will be served with meals in dining lounges. They will be open Monday. Liquor vendors are to be closed Friday, open Saturday, closed Monday.

Banks will open Saturday from 9 to 11 a.m., closed Friday and Monday.

CROSSWORD ANSWER TO APPEAR SATURDAY

Because there will be no issue of The Times on Good Friday, results of the weekly crossword contest will be announced in Saturday's editions, along with the next puzzle. The new puzzle will be printed in the Saturday, Monday and Tuesday editions, with a 24-hour extension, until Thursday, the deadline for entries.
